ENGAGE IN CLASH

"You Have Accused My Father, by Insinuation, of Graft," Attorney Tells Councilman.

READY FOR BATTLE,
ANNOUNCES GORDON

Hearing Adjourned Until Council Grants Appropriation—Investigation May Be Dropped.

A heated clash that threatened a personal encounter between Attorney Paul Carpenter and Councilman Bob Gordon marked the first session Friday night of the council probe committee appointed to investigate charges of alleged irregular conduct on the part of the attorney and his father, Alderman J. L. Carpenter, in connection with the attorney's practice before certain committees of which his father is a member.

The probe grew out of the controversy over the proposed municipal market, which the alderman and his son opposed and aided in the fight in council to refer the question to decision of the people at the ballot box. The resolution won by the margin of one vote, but was vetoed Friday by the mayor.

Attorney Carpenter denounced the councilman, who was author of the resolution to investigate. In a voice quivering with emotion he declared: "You did your attacking behind the council railing. You've got to prove your charges or apologize. You've accused my father by insinuation of graft, and I'll make you swallow your words."

"Will Make It Personal." Councilman Gordon jumped to his feet, his face livid. "You've got to respect me," he shouted. "If you want to make a personal matter of this we'll make it personal right here."

Both councilman and attorney started closing the intervening gap between them. Spectators and the chairman of the committee interposed before hostilities could go further and persuaded the two men to resume their seats.

At the end of the meeting the committee decided that the investigation could not continue without the service of a stenographer to take down the proceedings and an appropriation to defray expenses. A motion by Mr. Gordon was adopted to ask council at the next meeting for the necessary appropriation. In the meantime further sessions of the probe are suspended. It also was agreed that unless formal charges are filed by that time "to drop the probe."

After the committee had been called to order by Alderman W. C. Davis, the chairman, and its authority and its ability to go on with the quiz without a stenographer and an expense appropriation had been discussed several minutes Mr. Carpenter requested permission to say a few words. His father was present also.

"This committee has no right to question me, much less investigate me," stated Mr. Carpenter. "I saw this resolution on Councilman Gordon's desk. Evidently it had been deliberately prepared."

"It was drawn by the city attorney just before I introduced it," interrupted Mr. Gordon.

"There are only two movants in this remarkable case," continued Mr. Carpenter. "The mayor and Mr. Gordon. You don't need any legal authority to proceed. You can get these two gentlemen to come here and testify."

"They attacked me behind the railing of council. But this is my day in court, and I'm going to exercise it. I'm going to lay some things on this committee before the public, that will be interesting."

Natural Gas
Is Discovered
At Fort Gaines

Full Investigation to Be Made to Determine Real Commercial Value.

Fort Gaines, Ga., November 25.—(Special).—Following the discovery of natural gas exuding from the banks of the Chattahoochee river on both the Georgia and Alabama sides, preliminary experiments have shown it to be of good quality heating gas.

Citizens here are elated over the development and are determined to have a full investigation to determine the real commercial value of the gas.

Should the gas be shown to be of real value, preparations will be made to begin borings on both sides of the river soon as possible.

The gas is not exuding in large quantities, but experts who have made a preliminary investigation, indicated that prospects for producing large gas wells are excellent.

Halt and Maimed
Pitifully Clamor
For Surgeon's Aid

Famous Austrian Healer Appalled at Number of Cripples in America.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.
New York, November 25.—Misery so poignant and so widespread greeted Dr. Lorenz, famous Austrian orthopedic surgeon, on the steps and in the halls of the hospital, that never in all his career had he been affected as he was by the sight of hundreds of maimed, "distorted humans, clamoring for his aid. And never, he added, had he seen a land so sorely in need of relief from spinal and other troubles superinduced by infantile paralysis.

His observations so far, he declared, led him to believe that there were "10 or 15 times as many" such sufferers in the United States as any other country in the world. He was appalled, he said, at what he had found since coming here to try to repay some part of America's bounty to starving children.

Works Five Hours. Whether he will accept a 20-room hospital in Brooklyn, which M. G. Collins, an oil man, has offered to equip and endow with the proceeds of a $900,000 fund or will accept an invitation to become consulting surgeon at the hospital for joint diseases, is yet to be decided, according to Dr. Lorenz's assistant, Dr. C. Weyman.

The question of when he will make a proposed tour of other cities also is undetermined. So many cripples are clamoring for his aid here that Dr. Lorenz is unwilling to leave, Dr. Weyman said.

That it will be impossible for the noted surgeon to give more than a fleeting examination to many of his patients, was emphasized at today's clinic.

After working like mad, for more than five hours, Dr. Lorenz had seen 125 cripples—scarcely one-tenth of the supplicants for aid who crowded the hospital and the streets outside, coming on crutches, in wheel chairs and in automobiles.

During those busy five hours, he said afterward, he had advised enough operations to keep one surgeon busy for six months.

Police Called. Police reserves had to be called to handle the eager, hopeful crowds outside, while nurses and internes were kept busy within, maintaining some semblance of order among those who had gained admittance.

Every time that Dr. Lorenz appeared in the corridor, darting from one room to another where some patients had been disposed for him, there was a clatter of crutches and canes on Denial Issued to Statement That Bishop Candler Threw Book to Quiet Unruly Minister.

WALKER WHITE SPEAKS ON NEW HOSPITAL

Unusually Large Class of Ministers Admitted Into Methodist Conference on Trial.

BY REV. W. A. BROOKS.
Tifton, Ga., November 25.—(Special).—Election of delegates to the general convention of the Methodist Episcopal church, adoption of a resolution denying a story recently published that Bishop Warren A. Candler "hurled a book half-way across a large church auditorium, silencing an unruly member," and the address of Walker White, of Atlanta, on the new Wesley Memorial hospital being erected in the Capital City, were the chief developments in today's sessions of the South Georgia Methodist conference here.

The balloting for delegates resulted as follows: Clerical delegates, first ballot, 214 votes cast; necessary to elect, 108; Dr. T. D. Ellis, 191; Dr. Bascom Anthony, 153; Dr. C. R. Jenkins, 148. Second ballot: Ballots cast, 218; necessary to elect, 110; Rev. J. A. Thomas, 129. Third ballot, votes cast, 201; necessary to elect, 101; Dr. W. F. Quillian, 126. Fourth ballot, 185 votes cast; necessary to elect, 93; J. M. Outler, 113; O. F. Cook, 96. No report on ballot for reserve delegates.

Lay delegates, first ballot, 64 votes cast; necessary to elect, 33; J. M. Rogers, 51; C. B. Lewis, 43; R. M. Arnaux, 48; W. A. Covington, 36. No election on second ballot. Third ballot, 54 votes cast; necessary to elect, 28; L. E. Health 29; F. J. Dudley, 28; W. L. Harmon, 28. Reserve delegates, J. B. Wright and R. L. Greer.

Excellent Session. It is being declared on all sides that the present session of the South Georgia conference is one the best and most spiritual within the entire history of the body.

OF CHI PHIS OPENS

Delegates Will Attend Football Game in the Afternoon and Will Enjoy Banquet at Night.

Approximately 350 members of the Chi Phi fraternity met in Atlanta Friday morning at the Piedmont hotel for the ninety-seventh annual congress of the fraternity. A picture of the delegates which was taken Friday morning at Grady monument, will appear in Sunday's Constitution. This is the fifth time Atlanta has played host to the congress.

Friday afternoon the delegates were entertained at a tea by Dr. and Mrs. Phinizy Calhoun at their home, and Friday evening the congressional ball was held at the Piedmont Driving club. At the morning's business meeting, Dr. E. Sparks was named chairman of the congress. Dr. Theodore B. Appel, of Pennsylvania, is president of the fraternity.

Saturday morning's business session will begin at 9 o'clock in the Pied-

Georgia Senator Sees Support for His Contention During Debate on Anti-Beer Bill.

BY JAMES A. HOLLIMON,
Constitution Bureau,
Raleigh Hotel.

Washington, November 25.—(By Constitution Bureau).—David H. Blair, commissioner of internal revenue, superior officer to prohibition Commissioner Hayes, today ordered a "thorough and complete" investigation of the raid made, it is alleged, without warrant upon the private home and premises of Miss Bessie Garden, at Savannah, by Special Prohibition Enforcement Agent E. B. Henson, and the incident which has been vigorously protested by Mayor Stewart, backed up by Senator Thomas E. Watson, has overnight become a national issue, and likely to force sensational developments.

Senator Watson, who is personally acquainted with Miss Garden, the family having originally been neighbors of the senator at Thomson, and knowing her to be a most estimable lady, has called upon the prohibition enforcement department of the treasury to dismiss Henson and the inquiry officially ordered into the incident today is a direct result of the senator's action.

Watson Vindicated. The Georgian declared today that the alleged activities of the raiding party constitutes a "complete answer" to the claims he had made when the anti-beer bill was before the senate.

"I would say," he continued, "that these agents should give thanks today for not having been killed. If that woman whose home they defiled had had a spunk man as her protector—well, he would have done as I or any other ought to do under such circumstances."

The Washington Post, which is the mouthpiece of the recognized Harding administration, had the following editorial on the incident today: "If the facts are as published, the prohibition agents had no right whatever under the constitutional guarantee to do what they did. Assuming they had reason to believe there was illicit liquor in the house, their plain duty was to secure a search warrant and then make an investigation. Whatever suspicions they may have had, they were not within the law in forcing an entrance and searching the place without a warrant."

Frequent Complaints. "Complaints of similar violations of the law have been so frequent that when the anti-beer bill was before the senate Senator Stanley, of Kentucky, proposed an amendment providing for severe penalties for officers who disregard the fourth amendment. But Sinn Fein Delegates Consult Dail Eireann, While Premier Craig Returns to Belfast.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.
London, November 25.—What is feared to be the last scene in the effort to bring peace to Ireland was enacted today when Prime Minister Lloyd-George and Sir James Craig met in the former's official residence in Downing street, where the imperial premier told the head of the northern government that Sinn Fein Ireland had not consented to own allegiance to the king, a prerequisite to Ulster's agreement to enter an all-Ireland parliament.

The Sinn Fein delegates are consulting with members of the dail cabinet in Dublin on the crisis thus brought about, while Sir James packed his bag and returned to Belfast, where he will report to his parliament next Tuesday and possibly disclose the cause of the virtual breakdown of the Irish negotiations. The official correspondence—that has passed between the various delegations also may be published at the same time in London.

Final Efforts. Week-end efforts meanwhile will be made by peace-makers in an attempt to persuade Sinn Fein to modify its attitude on the question of allegiance to the king. The dail eireann members have taken the oath of allegiance to the Irish republic, and thus far they have refused to substitute for it recognition within Ireland of King George. The furthest concession from the Sinn Feiners has been their willingness to recognize the king as the formal president of the community of free nations which Ireland might choose voluntarily to join, but even this was not definitely pronounced.

VOTE REDUCTION

Ordinance Committee Favors Decrease in Number From 33 to 22 and Urges Other Changes.

By unanimous vote, the ordinance committee of city council, Friday afternoon, approved Councilman Claude E. Buchanan's ordinance to reduce the number of standing committees from 33 to 22.

Committees that will lose their identity by consolidation with others are cemetery, electric and other railways, fire, insurance, parks, salaries and freight rates and transportation.

The committee amended the ordinance to enlarge the sewers and drains committee to 11 members, one from each ward, instead of 7 members, and the lights, telephones and railroads committee down from 7 to 5.

Councilman J. C. Murphy suggested that, with $1,250,000 of bond money to be expended by the sewer committee, its membership ought to include a representative from each ward. All the other members concurred in this view.

Macon Fire Department Also Asked for Help. Loss Heavy—Stiff Breezes Are Blowing.

Associated Press dispatches, private messages and information received by The Constitution at an early hour this morning gave the news of the most disastrous fire in Augusta since the conflagration of March, 1916.

At 2 o'clock Saturday morning it was stated that the Harrison and Johnson buildings had been completely destroyed by the blaze, that the Albion hotel and The Chronicle buildings had been damaged, and that the blaze had spread to smaller structures on a number of other streets. The loss, it is stated, will be very heavy, but no estimate could be given at this hour.

At 1:30 o'clock a message was received by the Atlanta fire department asking for aid and officials at once began making arrangements with the Georgia railroad for a special train to send men and equipment. Information received from the Associated Press stated that Macon had also arranged to send firemen.

Starts in Harrison Building. Augusta, Ga., November 25.—(Special).—Fire broke out in the Harrison building shortly before 2 o'clock and in an hour that building and the Johnson building were destroyed.

Within those buildings, running back from Broad to Ellis, there were probably twenty businesses, including some large ones, such as Liggett's.

The Chronicle office, in the rear of the Harrison building, is probably burned.

The fire is still raging and has reached the Albion hotel, which is scorching. The old theater, on Green and Jackson streets, is on fire. A

BUNCO INJUNCTION

Legal Service in Case Made by Key, McClelland and McClelland for Mrs. Woodward.

Judge John T. Pendleton, of Fulton superior court, Friday refused to dissolve the injunction which tied up the property and cash held by Mrs. Floyd Woodward, Mrs. Elizabeth Smith, wife of W. Clyde Smith, and Mrs. Cornelia O'Brien, wife of "Jackknife" O'Brien, on petition of a number of victims of the Atlanta bunco syndicate, of which Woodward, Smith and O'Brien were alleged to be leaders.

This action marks another important step in the bunco syndicate civil proceedings. Legal service in the case was made on June 14, 1921, on attorneys representing the victims, by the firm of Key, McClelland and McClelland, two members of which are James L. Key, mayor of Atlanta, and John S. McClelland, member of the police commission.

This firm represented Mrs. Woodward. Mayor Key has stated since this suit was filed that he is connected with the firm in name only.

Nothing Definite in President's Proposal, But Delegates' Replies Are Encouraging.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.
Washington, November 25.—In the midst of developments that helped clear the air for all the big subjects before the arms conference, President Harding let it be known today that he had taken the first step toward a continuance of international discussions which may lead to an "association of nations."

Conferences among the nations once a year to consider whatever may menace good understanding have been suggested by the president informally to some of the foreign delegates and their replies are said to have encouraged a hope that a permanent plan of consultation will receive world approval.

Lacking all the properties of a formal proposal, Mr. Harding's plan is declared to have been offered only as a personal suggestion, without any hint as to the details of its accomplishment. Whether a more formal approach to the subject will be taken before the end of the Washington conference remains to be developed.

Progress Made. Within the conference itself, definite progress was made in both the Far Eastern and naval negotiations and it became apparent that although the question of land armament had been laid aside for the present without an attempt to agree on limitation of armaments, some of the delegates hoped later to translate the sentiment of the conference into a joint declaration of general policy.

The naval discussions centered for the moment about Japan's recapitulation, of her present naval strength, in connection with her hope for a modification of the 5-5-3 ratio of the American plan. Experts of the British, French and Italian delegations withheld their decisions but the American advisers made known their conviction, reached after examination of the Japanese data, that no change in the ratio was warranted.

Resuming the Far Eastern negotiations, the delegations of the nine nations approved "in principle" China's plea for amelioration of the extra territorial rights now enjoyed by the powers. A plan of modification with a view to final abolition is expected to be worked out by an international commission of jurists.

Hopes Increased.
The Harding suggestion has by no means reached the point of a definite proposal for an association of nations but it was revealed tonight that the president's personal conversations with foreign spokesmen on the subject had greatly increased his hope for a new day in international relationship as a result of the Washington conference.

It was indicated that as a first step toward world wide recognition for the conference plan the results of the negotiations here might be submitted for approval not only to the participating nations, but to those not represented here, including Germany and Russia.

So far as the suggestions of Mr. Harding have been made known they contemplate a meeting of nations about the council table once a year to thresh out troublesome questions and devise means for the preservation of peace. It is said to be the hope of the president that in the end all the smaller governments will join with the great powers in whatever discussions may concern them or the world situation generally.

World Court of Justice.
There is no indication that any covenant or constitution would be proposed as the basis of the plan, or that any elaborate international machinery would be suggested to carry it into effect. The meeting might be convened to consider special subjects or merely to survey international relationships and look for danger points in a general effort at good understanding.

Whether an international court of justice might be one of the results of the conference is expected to reach a decision.

Commission to China.
The hope of the president for a continuation of conferences like the present one became known at a moment when the arms delegates reached a stage of their deliberations strongly suggesting in itself that further negotiations will be necessary to consummate the task begun here. Representatives of the nine participating nations are said to have virtually decided today to send an international commission of jurists to investigate China's judicial system and report next year to the various foreign offices, and discussion of other features of the Far Eastern situation continued with a growing indication that some sort of international machinery would be necessary to carry out the results of the conference decisions.

It also is becoming apparent that the Washington conference will not be able to make final decisions on some subjects relating to armaments, since subjects like the rules of warfare necessarily must be given a world wide consideration before there can be a revision of which the powers will be willing to bind themselves. A continuing commission on aircraft is regarded as another probable outcome of the conference and it may be that after a limit has been set on the submarine power of the nations there may be a more permanent body created to consider the suggestion that underwater warfare be abolished altogether.

Avoids Detail.
In fact, in his preliminary consideration of the best means toward international cooperation, Harding is said by his friends to have tried to keep his proposals as free from detail as possible with the deliberate purpose of avoiding complication. His intention is declared to have been to apply to the world situation in the broadest sense the principle of "a meeting of minds," as he employed it in his pre-inauguration days at Marion.

So far he is willing to go toward Washington with the idea that he is willing to let the results of the present conference and the plans for future meetings rest merely on a "gentlemen's agreement" rather than a formal treaty. Some members of the American delegation in the conference are said to favor the treaty method and the point is yet to be decided; but it was asserted in authoritative quarters tonight that so far as Mr. Harding was concerned he would as soon have a nation's word as its bond.

This position the president is said to take as based upon a faith that the Washington conference will help to put a new face upon international relationships and arouse a new sense of national honor. Agreements such as the conference is expected to reach are regarded by the chief executive as touching closely national considerations of uprightness and good-will and rest, therefore, upon the good faith of the nations concerned.

conference the United States first sought the approval of the other powers, and an official of one foreign delegation said tonight that he presumed the same method would be followed in regard to further invitations.

In the view of most delegates it would not be necessary for all the nations to send delegates to Washington to participate in the final agreement of the conference. Such a proceeding might lead to considerable delay, and it was generally predicted that the final proposals of the conference simply would be transmitted to the various foreign offices for acceptance or rejection.

Bandits Abandon Loot in Boxcar, But Make Escape

Detroit, November 25.—Three bandits, who this afternoon shot and probably fatally wounded Robert Jackson, paymaster of the Detroit Glass and Malleable Iron company, made off with $5,600 in currency and later abandoned the money in a box car on the Michigan railroad tracks. The money, taken from Jackson and his assistant, Daniel A. Parent, in two satchels, was found rolled up in an old overcoat.

Jackson, 59 years old, was shot three times and at the hospital it was said he could not survive. According to Parent the bandits fired upon them without warning.

DECATUR FIRE CHIEF DIES FROM INJURIES

Sylvester Ray, Formerly of Atlanta Department, Suffers Relapse and Dies.

Decatur, Ga., November 25.—(Special.)—Sylvester Ray, chief of the Decatur fire department and for many years a member of the Atlanta fire department, died early tonight as a result of injuries received while fighting a fire on Clairmont avenue, October 8.

The officer apparently had recovered from his injuries during the past week and had visited his offices several times. He suffered a relapse, however, and on Thursday and Friday his condition was considered very serious.

Chief Ray became head of the Decatur fire department May 13, 1921. He was highly recommended to city officials by Chief W. B. Cody, of the Atlanta fire department. For sixteen years he was an expert member of the Atlanta department.

At the time he came to Decatur, Chief Ray was in government service at Fort McPherson, being connected with fire prevention and fire department there.

Mr. Ray, who resided at 211 Plum street, Atlanta, is survived by his wife, two sons, Arthur C. Ray and J. S. Ray, Jr., and two daughters, Miss Katie Ray and Pearl M. Ray, one year old. The funeral will be held at Moore Memorial church Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Burial will follow at Northview cemetery.

FORESTRY CLUBS TO HOLD MEETING IN ATLANTA SOON

Plans to hold a state convention of organizations interested in forestry were formed at a meeting of the Southern Forestry committee held in the office of M. L. Brittain, state superintendent of education, at Jacksonville, Fla., last week. The convention will be held in Atlanta or Macon prior to February 6, at which time the Southern Forestry congress will meet at Jacksonville, Fla.

Formation of county and local forestry clubs will begin at once. A committee to direct this phase of the work was named at the meeting as follows: B. H. Stone, of Blairsville; C. B. Harmon, H. G. Spahr and Miss Alice Baxter, of Atlanta.

Dr. S. W. McCallie, state geologist, made the principal address at the meeting. Through the use of maps he explained the needs of concerted action in forestry work in Georgia.

Sweet Potatoes Make Fine Booze Say Dry Agents

If the crop of sweet potatoes is slightly under par in so far as quantities go this season, blame the moonshiners of Georgia, warn the revenue officers of the state.

This popular vegetable has taken its place with corn, and rye, and other articles used in the manufacture of liquor state, and the result is the finest kind of brandy.

The warning to the lovers of the potato was issued after a raid made by Agents E. E. Dixon, C. C. Royal, and D. W. S. Frye, and Deputy Marshal S. A. Smith, who have been investigating moonshine possibilities in Fayette county.

Their evidence was given at a preliminary hearing of three brothers—A. B. C. W. and S. B. Brown—which resulted in the first named being required to give a $100 bond, and his two brothers being assessed $1,000 each.

The officers told the commissioner before whom the case was heard that about 8 o'clock Thanksgiving night they discovered the three brothers busy at work on a 50-gallon still and that the mash was made of sweet potatoes. It looked like a fine run of brandy, they added.

Memorial Window To Be Unveiled To Samuel Inman

A memorial window to the late Samuel Inman, one of Atlanta's most prominent business men and civic leaders, placed in the First Presbyterian church by members of his family, will be unveiled at 11 o'clock Sunday morning.

The window has three Gothic openings illustrative of Christ's appearance to His apostles after His resurrection. In the center of the picture is the figure of Christ ascending into the clouds, with His arms outstretched to the disciples gathered below.

The groups are so arranged throughout the three openings that a harmonious effect is produced. The coloring of the robes of the apostles is deep and rich, but a greater brilliance lies in the clouds behind them, and in the figure of Christ, glorified by a circle of light which illumines

Chief Tells Jury That Lena Clarke Admitted Guilt

Florida Trial Featured by Wrangle Over Admissibility of Alleged Confession.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Orlando, Fla., November 25.—A legal wrangle over the admissibility of evidence of an alleged confession obtained by Chief of Police Vestal from Lena Clarke, on trial here today, charged with the murder of Fred A. Milmore, here today, Judge Andrews, presiding, announced he would announce his ruling at the opening of court tomorrow.

The alleged confession which Chief Vestal said was made verbally, as related to the jury, quoted Miss Clarke as admitting she killed Milmore.

According to Chief Vestal's story to the court, Miss Clarke accompanied by Patterson, came to his office about 9 o'clock the night of the killing. She testified that she had been with Milmore at the time of the robbery, and that she had been with him at the time of the shooting.

The prayer of dedication at the unveiling of the Inman memorial window will be offered by Rev. F. H. Gaines, president of Agnes Scott college. The hymn, "Crown Him," will be sung by students of Agnes Scott college. The sermon, by Rev. J. Spore Lyons, will follow.

TWO NEGROES JAILED ON SHOOTING CHARGE

Two negroes, Crawford Duncan and Charlie Williams, are being held in the Fulton county jail in connection with the shooting and attempted holdup of Thomas Chellis, who conducts a soft drink stand on the Cascade road, several nights ago.

County Police Lieutenant Carroll went to arrest Williams who was suspected of connection with the shooting. He was arrested in a recent theft of chickens, and believing he was being arrested in connection with the robbery charge, said that he did not shoot the merchant but that Duncan did.

Duncan, when arrested, told the officer that Williams stood outside to watch while he went in to rob Chellis. He was arrested in connection with the robbery charge, said that he did not shoot the merchant but that Duncan did.

$50,000 DAMAGE SUIT HEARING IS STARTED

Hearing on the $50,000 damage suit brought by Sharon Hodges, 14-year-old son of H. A. Hodges, against Al Martin, councilman and Mrs. Martin, for injuries received by the boy when he was struck by the Martins' car on May 12, 1920, will be continued Monday morning before Judge H. M. Reid in the city court of Atlanta.

Young Hodges suffered the loss of a leg as a result of the accident, he alleged.

Hewlett and Dennis and John S. Higginbotham represent Hodges. Arnold and Arnold and Harvey Hill represent Mr. and Mrs. Martin.

NEGRO BOY INJURED WHEN STRUCK BY AUTO

Oscar Bell, a negro messenger boy, sustained a fractured leg when a bicycle upon which he was riding was struck Friday night by an automobile driven by George W. Patterson, a salesman, of Columbia, S. C., and formerly of Atlanta, at DeKalb avenue and Krog street. The boy was taken to Grady hospital. Mr. Patterson was released from police headquarters under $100 bond, charged with reckless driving.

In the automobile with Mr. Patterson was Mrs. Patterson and their small child; Mrs. Hubert Wilson, of Columbia; Mrs. W. B. Campbell, 111 Hogan street, and Mrs. F. M. Marsh, of 159 Atlanta avenue.

DAVIS IS CONVICTED; GIVEN 3 TO 5 YEARS

R. A. Davis, 35 years old, was found guilty of voluntary manslaughter by a jury in the criminal division of the superior court and was sentenced Friday to serve from three to five years by Judge R. N. Hardeman before whom the case was heard.

Davis was accused of killing J. F. Henson at the lumber yards of the Atlanta Lumber company. Henson was 55 years old. Davis declared Henson attacked him with a monkey wrench and that he stabbed Henson in self-defense. Attorneys J. Walter LeCraw and Fred Harlow defended Davis. Solicitor Boykin prosecuted the case.

HAROLD GRIFFITH HURT BY FALL UNDER HORSE

Harold Griffith, aged 14, of 81 East Twelfth street, was hurt in Piedmont park Friday morning when he fell from a bicycle he was riding, and was thrown under a horse driven by Miss Margie McLeod, of 30 East Eighth street. The boy was not seriously injured, and was carried to his home.

GROUP OF JURISTS WILL VISIT CHINA

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Washington, November 25.—An agreement was signed today having reached at today's meeting of the committee on Pacific and Far Eastern questions of the Washington conference providing that an international commission of jurists shall be sent to China next year to report whether the Chinese system of justice is sufficient to warrant abolition of other nations' extra territorial rights.

In dealing today with the question of extra territorial rights in China, the Chinese representatives told of the progress made in establishing judicial codes and courts in China and argued strongly for abolishment of extra territorial privileges.

Friendly Expressions.

With friendly expressions from other delegates, the whole matter of extra territorial rights was referred to the subcommittee to be headed by Senator Lodge, of the American delegation, and understanding that the subcommittee would draft a resolution recommending an international jurists commission.

When the matter was said, it was determined and reported to the nine powers whether the present Chinese judicial system would warrant the termination of extra territorial rights. The question raised and regarded as undetermined was whether the practice of the Chinese courts and their administration of justice would be developed sufficiently to insure the protection of the persons and property of foreigners. This is the question which the international commission would report to their several governments.

Relief was expressed that the report of the international commission would be unanimous and that if favorable to the Chinese court administration, all of the powers would be bound by treaty. The United States only has one court at Shanghai, established in 1902. Great Britain and Japan have several and Sweden also has a tribunal.

Progress Made.

The view expressed generally in today's committee meeting was that under the new codification of Chinese law much progress has been made in the substantive jurisprudence of China. The conference was unanimously agreed, except as to the statements of the Chinese delegates themselves, as to how the courts are administered and for this reason it was said the opinion was general that the proposed international commission should make an investigation.

The following communication on the meeting was issued:

"The committee on Pacific and Far Eastern questions met in the Pan-American building, Friday, November 25, at 11 a. m. All the delegates were present except Signor Meda, Baron Shidehara, M. Sarraut and Lord Lee.

Report 'Grotesque.'

"At the opening of the session Mr. Hughes expressed his great regret at the appearance of a report in a Washington paper this morning of alleged happenings at the last meeting of the committee. The report of the committee with Mr. Baufour was not only untrue, but grotesque, and did him the greatest injustice. Mr. Hughes could not imagine how such a scandal had got into circulation. Mr. Baufour expressed his great appreciation of Mr. Hughes' statement and had never doubted that Mr. Hughes would take the view he just stated, but the manner and words in which that view had been put up for the committee had deeply moved him, and he wished to express his thanks.

"After a discussion it was decided to appoint a subcommittee to investigate and report in regard to the question of extra territoriality in China. In regard to this subject, Mr. Wang Chung, chief justice of the supreme court of China, made a statement which will appear later.

"The committee then discussed the question of foreign post offices in China, the Chinese minister, Mr. Sze, making a statement which will subsequently be made public.

"The committee then adjourned to meet at 10:30 o'clock Saturday morning, November 26."

DYING STATEMENT OF MOVIE ACTRESS

court allowed it to remain. Dr. Rumfeld said he saw no bruises or other marks on Miss Rappe's body.

Dr. Rumfeld said he did not cross-examine Miss Irene Morgan, trained nurse of South Pasadena, was the next witness.

Miss Morgan said she was employed in Hollywood by Miss Rappe as housekeeper and trained nurse. She said she saw Miss Rappe tearing at her clothes "many times" and treated her at least five times for bladder trouble.

"Her patient used to 'double up and cry' because of the constant pain in the trouble, the witness said.

Would Tear Clothes Off.

After drinking intoxicating liquor, Miss Rappe would tear her clothes off.

Under cross-examination the witness testified to having attended a South Pasadena woman during an operation. The prosecution explained that by bringing out this information it wished to establish a motive for Miss Morgan's statements regarding Miss Rappe. This line of evidence was stopped by the court.

The crowds were so dense at the opening of the afternoon session that the defendant and counsel had difficulty in reaching their seats.

Mrs. Bambi Maude Delmont, who brought the charge of murder against Arbuckle, which was later reduced to manslaughter, was a spectator. It was her first appearance since the trial began.

Experts Testify.

The defense finished putting in expert testimony today. Dr. George Franklin Shields, who testified as an alienist in the first trial of Harry K. Thurtell, testified today that he believed bladder injuries might be caused by hysteria or alcoholism. Dr. Lloyd Bryan and Fred H. Zimwald, testified that bladder injuries might be caused by certain conditions, be purely spontaneous in character.

Mrs. Delmont sat close to Mrs. Minnie Durfee Arbuckle, wife of the defendant, but as far as could be seen the woman did not glance at each other.

Arbuckle apparently was unmoved by the evidence. He appeared more cheerful during the recess periods than he has been for some time past.

Dr. A. A. Townsend, who had been having Miss Rappe at a summer resort near Los Angeles and of having ministered to her at the girl's request for what seemed to be abdominal pains.

Harry B. Barker, a ranchman of Stockton, Cal., said he had known Miss Rappe intimately for five years and that he had seen her on several occasions "all doubled up and tearing at her clothes." Once he said she appeared to suffer greatly after drinking a small glass of wine. Barker said he had a real estate business in Gary, Ind., as well as his ranch in California.

The Johnson building is occupied by offices. The Harrison building was occupied by a drug store, a haberdashery, a millinery establishment, a jewelry store and the office of the Postal Telegraph company.

A call for help was at 2:25 o'clock sent by the mayor to Fire Chief Jones in Macon, and plans were made in that city for sending fire fighting equipment by a special train.

Indications at an early hour Saturday morning were that the entire block bounded by Jackson, Broad, Ellis and McIntosh streets would be destroyed. Liggett's drug store and the Postal office were about the first to go.

TWO AUTOS COLLIDE IN HEAD-ON SMASH

Two automobiles, one driven by H. Brown, of Shelton avenue, and the other by W. Norris Harris, of 421 E. 12th street, were damaged when they collided at Luckie and Simpson streets Friday night.

Mr. Brown's automobile was coming into Luckie street from Simpson, and that driven by Mr. Harris, was on Luckie street, when the accident occurred. No one was injured.

R. L. HESTER SPEAKS AT THIRD BAPTIST

R. L. Hester, who has lectured throughout Florida and in many cities, delivered a sermon at the Third Baptist church Friday night.

No admission was charged, but a collection was taken up for the benefit of the church library. This was the first public appearance of the speaker in Atlanta. A musical program was given by Mrs. R. B. Mitchell, a well-known soloist.

SERVICES ARE HELD FOR REV. J. A. PERDUE

Funeral services for Rev. J. A. Perdue, aged 73, a retired minister of the Church of Christ, and a well-known Atlantan, who died at the home of his sister, Mrs. J. H. Johnson, 26 South Ashby street, Thursday, were held at the home at 2:30 o'clock Friday afternoon.

The body was taken to Athens for interment, with Burley & Brandon in charge. Besides his sister, he is survived by a son, J. T. Perdue, of Athens.

BEWARE OF TOO MUCH ASPIRIN

Physicians Say Plain Aspirin Dangerous to Weak Hearts and Makes Strong Hearts Weak. Aspirin, a New Aspirin Compound That Does Not Depress the Heart or Upset the Stomach.

Physicians explain that severe colds, LaGrippe, fevers, headaches, neuralgia and rheumatism are almost invariably attended by a weakness of the heart and require a stimulation rather than depression. They maintain that the safety of Bromo-Aspirin should give it preference over all other remedies for headache, neuralgia, rheumatism, and especially for severe colds and LaGrippe. Many persons whose lips become pale and blue and who are depressed and made sleepy by plain aspirin find Bromo-Aspirin free from those objectionable qualities, as it is slightly stimulating instead of depressing the heart.

The next time you find it necessary to take aspirin, try a box of Bromo-Aspirin and just see how much quicker you are relieved, how much better you feel and watch especially the absence of any of the bad after-effects you have been getting from plain aspirin. 25c buys a box of fifteen tablets at any good drug store.—(adv.)

SERVICES CONDUCTED FOR B. F. HYDEN FRIDAY

Funeral services for B. F. Hyden, aged 64, who died Thursday morning at the residence, 31 Delmar avenue, were held at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon at the home, by Rev. T. J. Davis and Rev. J. S. McLenore. Interment followed in North View cemetery, with Greenberg & Bond in charge.

Mr. Hyden is survived by his widow; four sons, B. T., E. K., Fred and Carl Hyden; three daughters, Mrs. C. W. Kneley, Mrs. T. C. Raven and Mrs. Arthur Voss; two sisters, Mrs. Martha Stowers and Mrs. S. H. Johnson, and three brothers, D. T., D. K. and J. M. Hyden.

PLANS APPROVED FOR WATERWORKS

Call for Erection of 21,000,000-Gallon Filter Basin and 10,000,000-Gallon Clear Water Basin.

A decisive forward step toward actual construction work on improvements to be made with proceeds of the $8,350,000 bond issue, was taken Friday afternoon at a joint meeting of subcommittees of the water board and the bond commission, held in the mayor's office.

These bodies approved the plans of P. H. Norcross, Atlanta engineer, for the building of new filters and clear water basins at the waterworks plant, recommended their adoption, and recommended that bids be advertised for immediately. The water board already had approved the plans and the joint recommendation will be passed on by the bond commission.

Plans by Mr. Norcross, drawn after an exhaustive survey of the system with W. Zode Smith, waterworks superintendent, call for the erection of a 21,000,000-gallon filter basin and a 10,000,000-gallon clear water basin, at an estimated cost of $750,000. Details of the other improvements are being prepared now. Authorized for waterworks improvements in the bond issue is the sum of $2,850,000.

Friday morning bond commission members, citizens and property owners meeting at city hall, discussed probable locations for the Spring street viaduct, applications for appointment of number of consulting and construction engineers, and heard from property owners on Madison avenue, Hunter and Alabama streets in regard to the location of the viaduct.

They expressed their approval of the proposal to have the southern terminus of the bridge extend over Madison avenue to the building line, and urged that an opening into Alabama street be provided for in the plans. Among those who talked were Nat Kaiser, Robert F. Maddox and John R. Smith.

John Lyle Harrington, of the firm of Harrington, Howard & Ashe, consulting engineers, showed the committee several preliminary sketches for the viaduct and presented his claims for consideration as consulting and construction engineer of the project. William G. Spiker, of the firm of Spiker & Loe, Atlanta architects, also applied for the recommendation as did William B. Crenshaw, of Knoxville.

The committee took no action Friday but will make its recommendation to the bond commission later.

Four complete shows will be given at Loew's Grand theatre today, starting at 2:00, 4:00, 7:00 and 9:00 p. m. Five fine vaudeville acts are headed by "The Speed Girl," an abbreviated musical farce in which Dorothy Davis, assisted by Max Mann and George Graff, sing and dance their way into popularity. Other acts are Strassels, an unusual performance by dumb animals, Holden and Harmon in "The Bill Poster" with news songs and jokes, Boyd and King, introducing a sketch called "The Canebrake Girl," and a distinct novelty on the vaudeville stage, and Harry Bentley, the dancing xylophonist. The opener of the screen program is "The Jolt," a clever photoplay with Edna Murphy and Johnny Walker, playing the leading roles.

D. C. LAWSON TO ENTER INSURANCE BUSINESS

D. C. Lawson, one of the leaders in preparing Atlanta for the recently threatened railroad strike, and presently connected for years with local civic enterprises, announced Friday afternoon that he will enter the life insurance field here on December 1, resigning his position as assistant secretary of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, with which organization he has been connected for the last four years.

Mr. Lawson will take a position with the Mutual Life Insurance company, with headquarters at 800 Austell building. Prior to joining the office of the chamber, Mr. Lawson was connected in various capacities with the traffic department of railroads here, and when he left that service he was secretary of the Southern Freight association.

FULL DELEGATION FOR CONFERENCE

men were admitted on trial, as follows: Thornton Lee Jordan, Joseph Archie Barney, William Currie Bryan, John Oswald Cobb, David Augustus Martin, Charles D. Herrington, Clifford Brooks Shover, W. C. Lovett, Scott Warren, E. Rabin, Elmore S. Salter, William J. Simmons, Clarence E. Smith and James Naylor Sarrette.

The following memorial to the general conference was adopted:

"Whereas, God has so wonderfully blessed the Methodist church and her growth has exceeded all other churches for the period of her life, and believing that the two main points between the Methodist church and the other churches are her doctrines and her policy of an itinerant ministry; and believing that the time limit is necessary to the best form of an itinerary; therefore, be it resolved, That the South Georgia conference, now in session in Tifton, Ga., respectfully memorialize the general conference to meet in Hot Springs, in May, 1922, so that the majority of the discipline of 1918 by striking out the last proviso, viz: 'Provided, further, that where a quarterly conference shall request, and the majority of the presiding elders shall concur, by ballot, the bishop may appoint a preacher to a pastoral charge for more than four consecutive years.' Signed, E. M. Overby, W. C. Lovett, P. W. Ellis, J. C. G. Brooks, A. W. Reese, J. P. Dell, J. P. Peacock and a number of others.

Rev. M. B. Boykin, who served the Hahira charge, this year, since the sudden death of Rev. R. P. Fain, becomes effective at this session of the conference. Rev. Mr. Boykin held a supernumerary relation.

The following list of honored heroes of the cross and their characters passed and their names referred for continuation of the relation of supernumeration: W. C. Wade, M. A. Phillips, W. C. Jones, R. White Is Reinstated As the Superintendent Of Atkinson School

John G. White, recently suspended as superintendent of education of Atkinson county by the county board of education, was reinstated Friday by M. L. Brittain, state superintendent of education, who reversed the ruling of the county board on an appeal taken by the deposed official. Charges against the county superintendent were gross immorality, incompetence, neglect of duty and misconduct in office. Superintendent Brittain heard evidence submitted by the county board and by attorneys representing the deposed official, at a hearing held in his office at the capital Saturday. Superintendent Brittain held that the charges were not sustained.

"From the evidence presented, in my opinion, the charges against Mr. White were not sustained, and the act of the county board was not justifiable," Mr. Brittain ruled.

Under the law, the superintendent had a right to appeal to the state superintendent in the case, and the state superintendent has full authority to decide the case.

BENTLEY IS INDICTED ON PERJURY CHARGE

J. M. Bentley was indicted by the Fulton county grand jury Friday on a charge of false swearing in connection with furnishing bond for $300 for John Estvans on March 19, when he did not have sufficient property to secure the bond, it was alleged. Bentley was indicted several weeks ago on two similar charges.

Johnnie South alias Dave Raft, G. W. Armstrong and Albert Gossett alias John Baker, were indicted for the alleged theft of an automobile, the property of P. L. Provano.

Raymond Sisson accused of burglary in connection with the theft of a number of articles from the home of R. W. Woodruff also was indicted.

mont hotel, and the delegates will attend the Georgia-Dartmouth football game at Grant field in the afternoon. At 7 o'clock at night the annual banquet will be held in the Capital City club and adjournment will follow.

Thursday afternoon many of the delegates had arrived and they attended the Tech-Auburn game in a body. A "get-together" meeting was held Thursday evening in the Piedmont hotel and at 9 o'clock the delegates went to the Howard theater as the guests of the Atlanta Alumni association.

HOPES FOR PEACE IN IRELAND FADE

of the crown, have ransacked the constitutions of all the British dominions to find any precedent for the kind of relationship with the British crown that Sinn Fein will consider, but nothing can be found, and The Evening News, the first London newspaper to indicate the real cause of the crisis, suggests that the relations of Bavaria with Prussia, in the German empire, might furnish such a precedent.

Supports Ulster.

Mr. Lloyd George, it was understood, would not admit of any arrangement that would leave Ireland's allegiance to the crown in any doubt, and the government would support Ulster in refusing any association which would weaken its British citizenship.

The only prospect for peace now is said to rest on Sinn Fein's conceding allegiance to the crown and the influence of the advocates of moderation have been invoked in a final effort to change its position. The question is being put as to whether the point involved is worth renewed warfare for a breakdown of the negotiations on that issue, it is believed, would be followed either before or after the general election by the handing over of Ireland to military rule and the displacement of the civilian officials in Dublin castle to whose influence is attributed the previous failure of military measures.

All along the Sinn Fein delegates have held the belief that no matter what the result of the negotiations might be the British public would oppose the employment of the military, and in this they have the support of former Premier Asquith, who at a meeting of the liberal federation today said the liberal party had not receded from any pledge given against the forcible coercion of the Ulster minority.

At the same time, he asked all liberals to assent to the proposition that it was equally true that they were not going to be parties at the instance or for the sake of a corner of Ulster to coercion of the great mass of Irish people.

Increases Duties.

The revised list places the duties of the freight rates and transportation committee in the hands of the lights, telephones and railroads committee, the work of the committee on public improvements is given to the buildings and grounds committee, while the functions of the municipal research committee are merged with those of the libraries committee.

Mayor Key approved the rearrangement, with the exception of the home pupils committee, which will also govern matters of charity. He said he believed its work would be improved greatly by the addition of two citizen members, both women. The ordinance committee, however, differed with his suggestion.

The ordinance will be submitted to council at its next meeting.

VOTE REDUCTION IN COMMITTEES

the ordinance will become effective January 1, 1922.

Most of the elimination of committees is accomplished by transferring their duties and powers to some of those remaining. The proposed list of committees for next year is as follows:

Auditorium and markets, 5; board of firemasters, 7; bridges, 5; buildings and grounds, 5; claims, 5; lights, telephones and railroads, 5; finance, 11; hospitals, 5; insurance and prizes, 5; libraries, 5; minutes, 5; municipal warfare, 5; ordinance and charter revision, 7; parks and cemeteries, 5; police, 5; prisons, 5; public schools, 5; sanitary affairs, 7; sewers and drains, 11; streets, 11; tax, 5; waterworks, 5.

OPINION IS READY IN BERRIEN CASE

Attorney-General George M. Napier will render an opinion Saturday on the question referred to him by Governor Thomas W. Hardwick involving the determination of what ages will have to be reached by a $25,000 in deferred school warrants alleged to have been embezzled by R. N. Berrien, Jr., Atlanta broker who has been indicted since Saturday, in a warrant sworn out by Superintendent of Education M. L. Brittain.

For several days the attorney-general has been working on the Berrien case. He was asked by the governor to render an opinion as to whether or not the county and city boards to whom the state warrants were issued would be responsible for the losses, whether or not the state can issue additional warrants to cover the alleged shortages and to settle other legal points in connection with the loss.

"I will have my opinion ready to hand to Governor Hardwick Saturday morning," Mr. Napier said. "We have endeavored to expedite the matter as quickly as possible but the questions raised are important ones and require much time for investigation of authorities."

Superintendent Brittain is making every effort to see that the loss will not fall on the county and city boards. He contends that they entered in good faith the warrants which were turned over to Berrien and declared that the county and city education officials should not be permitted to bear the loss. If the opinion of the attorney-general holds that the county officials are responsible it is probable that the education officials next session, will be asked to appropriate money to cover their losses.

It was learned Friday that efforts are being made by friends and relatives of the matter, Miss Maria Berrien, sister of the broker, who is a member of the faculty of George Washington university, Washington, D. C., is in Atlanta and is at the home of the missing broker.

Nothing was developed Friday in the search for Berrien. Sheriff J. I. Lowry and private detectives employed by the state, announcing that there were no new developments in the case.

SIMS IS PAINTED AS CAPITALIZING BASE PREJUDICES

Replying Friday to Councilman Walter A. Sims' charge that Mayor Key "double-crossed" him by vetoing his ordinance barring attendance of whites and blacks at the same church, showing himself to be a "spineless ass," the mayor declared that "Mr. Sims seems to be trying to capitalize all the lowest and basest prejudices of the community for his own political advancement."

Councilman Sims charged that the mayor was "playing both ends against the middle" in that he had instigated the introduction of the ordinance which he vetoed.

"I think any man who will do what Mayor Key has done about this ordinance—that is, ask me to introduce it and then when a bunch of preachers comes to his office and raises a row, to turn right around and veto it—is nothing more than a spineless ass," Councilman Sims declared.

"I am not interested in the question as to whether Mr. Sims advances or not," stated Mayor Key, "but I am interested in measures for the peace and welfare of Atlanta. When men come up like the one referred to, no matter the source, that strike at the peace and happiness of the community I shall oppose them. Just like I did in the matter of the Sims' ordinance."

"I do not want to deal in personalities. My time and attention are occupied by matters vastly more important."

DIES AFTER VISITING GRAVE OF HIS MOTHER

Lemuel Maxwell Whitfield, 18-year-old son of L. P. Whitfield, 5 Woodson street, suffered severe hemorrhages while in a barber shop on South Pryor street Friday morning and died before medical aid could reach him.

"He had just gotten off the train after a trip to Kennesaw, Ga., where he visited his mother's grave. She died about a month ago. He went to the barber shop to get shaved and cleaned up, when he suffered the attack."

Besides his father, his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Mayfield, survive him.

The body was carried to the parlors of Harry G. Poole.

CONDITION OF WARE REPORTED IMPROVED

A. J. Ware, 38, of 190 Haynes street, who was believed by physicians at the Grady hospital to have been fatally stabbed Thursday night by Emory Cantrell, 19 years old, of 188 1-2 Haynes street, was reported slightly improved by the doctors Friday night, and it is now thought he has a fair chance for recovery.

Ware was stabbed as the outcome of a dispute concerning some faulty plumbing in Cantrell's apartment, which is immediately over the home of Ware, it is claimed. It is charged that Cantrell stabbed Ware after the latter cut off the water from Cantrell's apartment for the second time, after it was found that water was leaking through into Ware's home. Cantrell is still being held without bond charged with stabbing.

The Constitution Found by Sailor In Distant Hawaii

That the popularity of The Constitution as a newspaper is widely appreciated has been demonstrated on numbers of occasions by its presence in many places far outside the borders of the Empire State.

The latest instance and one which brought to it a feeling of homesickness for old Georgia, came in far-away Hawaii and this copy of the paper was so appreciated that one of its readers addressed a letter to The Constitution, expressing his pleasure at the opportunity of reading it.

When one of Uncle Sam's warships reached port in Honolulu, on November 6, one of the sailors, C. W. Yeale, of Pellam, went ashore and dropped into the Y. M. C. A. Glancing at a newspaper lying upon a table, an advertisement of "The Storm," which played at the Atlanta theatre in October, struck his eye. He picked up the paper and saw that it was The Constitution.

Mr. Yeale stated in his letter, dated Honolulu, Hawaii, November 7, that he expected shortly to sail for Shanghai, China. "I wonder," he said, "if I'll see one of the old papers there. Shouldn't be surprised now if I did."

MILK PRODUCERS PLAN INCREASE IN MEMBERSHIP

Plans for increasing the membership of the Georgia Milk Producers' association was outlined at a meeting of the association Friday afternoon at 1 o'clock, in the office of the Chamber of Commerce building.

It was decided to launch a publicity campaign, by means of newspaper advertising and work in the schools of the state, for the purpose of impressing upon the people the vital need of a greater consumption of milk. It was pointed out that the consumption of milk among Georgians, infants and adults, is far below the average necessary for good health.

The meeting was attended by Bright McConnell, of Augusta; W. S. Brown, of Savannah, and representatives of Cobb, DeKalb, Douglas, Fulton, Marion, Meriwether, Butts, Campbell, Richmond and Chatham counties. T. G. Chastain, of Atlanta, president, presided.

Harry L. Brown, Fulton county agent, made the principal speech of the meeting, stressing the vital need of organization, co-operation among Georgia dairymen.

It was decided to develop the association by forming county associations throughout the state. The meeting for that purpose will be held Tuesday night, December 29, at 7:30 o'clock, in the Decatur, Ga., courthouse.

HOW TO HAVE AN EXQUISITE COMPLEXION

EVERY woman owes it to herself to look her best at all times, and there is nothing more beautiful than a clean, clear, well-cared-for complexion, but to have this, the skin requires constant care and attention.

All day long dust and dirt are grinding and lodging into the pores of the skin, blackheads are accumulating, wrinkles developing and wind or sun roughening and reddening, and in the proper treatment of the skin, one must necessarily follow two well established rules.

First: the skin, to be kept clear, fresh and healthy and free from wrinkles, must have a frequent application, by a brisk massage, of a good, pure cold cream with oil base. This is done at night, before retiring. Second: before applying powder, in order to produce a soft, smooth, velvety effect, the skin must have an application of greaseless (vanishing) cream that will keep it from becoming dry, rough or shiny.

The most perfect and complete combination for this beauty treatment will be found in Isis Perfect Cold Cream for No. 1 and Isis Vanishing (Peroxide) Cream for No. 2. There is no complexion that cannot be improved by the proper use of these two creams, and if you would know what it is to have a most exquisite complexion, get a jar of each, Isis Cold and Isis Vanishing (Peroxide) Cream, and begin tonight. Isis Creams are fully warranted, you will find them delightful to use and your dealer can supply you. The price is 25 cents.—(adv.)

POTATO LIKE RAT BROUGHT TO OFFICE OF CONSTITUTION

It was at first called a rat. Then the editorial staff decided that it looked more like a possum. "It is like a rat, it sure is a monstrous big rat," was the general verdict reached by the Constitution staff as the members gravely inspected it, while it was reposing upon the city editor's desk Friday.

"Well," said one of the reporters, "it may look like a rat or it may look like a possum or a coon, but in my humble opinion it looks like a good meal."

"It is some vegetable," was the decision of the city editor. "It is in my opinion a superlative specimen of my favorite agricultural product. It is a bird of a spud."

The vegetable in question is a large sweet potato, which looks for all the world like a monstrous rat. It was brought to The Constitution by B. E. Moore, of the Central railroad, Atlanta, from his farm near Savannah. Small at one end, it slightly bent forward like the head of a rat nibbling a piece of cheese, the "body of the rat" is larger at the other end, from which a slender "tail" in the shape of the stem is appended. It has everything but the feet to complete the appearance of a rat.

ROBERT JULIAN SWAIN TO REST IN WEST VIEW

Funeral services for Robert Julian Swain, of 523 Central avenue, who for the past eight years had been associated with the Texas company, and who was well known in the city, will be conducted at the residence at 11:30 o'clock Saturday morning by Rev. S. R. Bell. Interment will follow in West View cemetery, with Barclay and Brandon, in charge.

Surviving Mr. Swain are his widow, and three brothers, W. L. Swain, Frank Swain and John Swain.

The death of Mr. Swain, familiarly known as "Colonel" Swain, was a distinct shock to his friends in Atlanta and the state. Although he was rendered a cripple by an accident in his childhood, he always was a genial companion, always eager to assist any one in distress, and was possessed of such sterling attributes that he won the respect of all with whom he came in contact. Officially he was a Texas company state that he was held in the highest esteem both as a man and as an employee.

ENTHUSIASM SHOWN BY Y. M. C. A. WORKERS

In and Around Decatur.

By Colonel Jefferson S. Mills.

Decatur, Ga., November 25.—(Special.)—The principal factors concerning my death and funeral in Decatur, Ga., were the enthusiasm and the usual reports being circulated.

It is true that on yesterday, I fell under a street car at the Ansley-Dosier corner, and the stress were doubled. I fell very far indeed in attempting to get out.

But my position was discovered, and a cry was raised that there was a man under the rear trucks. A crowd quickly gathered, and I was very much gratified at the charitable remarks concerning my horrible and untimely death. The car was quickly jacked up, and I was mercifully pulled from beneath the car.

But to the astonishment of all, instead of only half of my body being dragged out, I came forth whole, with legs and arms intact.

At this, those who had expressed great regret at my untimely death, grew indignant and menacing at the unexpected outcome, so that I was glad to be tossed into an ambulance to be carried anywhere from that place.

One of my friends took his seat by the driver and we howled away toward Atlanta. Meantime, I sat up and looked out the rear. Seeing that we were passing Ansley avenue, I threw open the door and gave a wild jump, with the intention of stopping at home, for I live, understand, on Ansley street.

"I'm in this campaign," Mr. Orr said, "because I am interested in the boy. That interest dates back to the time when I was a boy, and men were interested in me. No true man ever forgets that he was once a boy, and so all real men want to help the youngsters. The boy, and his chance, for our text, and on that text we can preach a sermon that will bring the money needed to make the campaign a success."

Mr. Dobbs pointed out the necessity of an unimpeded association program, in the building of future citizens.

"We must turn our attention to the boys," he said, "because upon their shoulders rests the future of Atlanta; and in no better way can we show our civic spirit than by investing in the Y. M. C. A."

Mr. Dobbs announced that every cent of the $100,000 would be put into association work, not even the expenses of the campaign to come out of it. This expense will be cared for by a special fund provided by the association directors.

MUSICAL TREAT WILL BE OFFERED SUNDAY

A musical treat will be offered tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock in the church auditorium, when the chorus choir of the Central Presbyterian church will sing Maunders' "Song of Thanksgiving."

Soloists who will take part are Mrs. R. R. Parker, soprano; Mrs. L. S. Miller, soprano; Mrs. J. R. H. Whitten, alto; Samuel Galloway, tenor; and Henry R. Bates, basso. Mrs. Parker and Mr. Galloway are soloists at the Central church, and Mrs. Stillman is a leading member of that choir. Mrs. Whitten is also soloist at the Ponce de Leon Avenue Baptist church, and will sing, by request, "A Song of Thanksgiving," by Allison. Mr. Bates is basso soloist at the First Presbyterian church, and one of the leading bass singers of the city. Mr. Alderson, organ soloist at the Howard theater, will preside at the organ.

SERVICES SATURDAY FOR DAVID K. CLARK

Funeral services for David K. Clark, sales manager of the Atlantic Ice and Coal corporation, will be conducted at St. Paul's Methodist church at 11 o'clock Saturday morning by the pastor, Rev. W. D. Crawley. Masonic ceremonies will be held at the graveside, in West View cemetery by Grant Park lodge, No. 404. Mr. Clark, who lived at 18 Sterling street, died Thursday night in a private hospital.

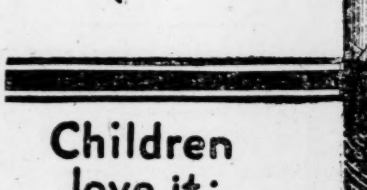

Surviving Mr. Clark are his widow, Mrs. Ruth Hudson Clark; a daughter, May Elizabeth, aged 4; and a son, David K. Clark, Jr., aged 2; his mother, Mrs. Sarah M. Clark, two brothers, John T. Clark, of Atlanta, and J. Alf Clark, of Ellenwood, and three sisters, Mrs. J. A. Simpson and Mrs. E. L. Cowan, of Ellenwood, and Mrs. W. E. Barber, of Atlanta.

ALAGA SYRUP

To Market, to Market
One bright winter day;
"Be sure to get ALAGA,"
We heard Mother say.

Pure and wholesome—nutritious and healthful. Pure cane syrup, with a smaller amount of corn syrup added, making a delicious blend—just right to the taste.

Children love it:

PHILLIPS GIVEN LIFE IN PRISON

Columbus, Ga., November 25.—(Special.)—W. E. Phillips, with two murder charges against him, today entered a plea of guilty in the Muscovy county superior court, with a request of mercy, and was given life in the penitentiary.

Phillips was charged with murdering L. V. Evans and P. A. Youngstrom at the plant of the Columbus Iron Works here August 3.

He was engaged as a night watchman of the company, and the two men he killed also were employees. He entered a plea in the case against him in connection with the shooting of Evans.

The other murder case was placed on the dead docket by Solicitor-General C. Frank McLaughlin.

LAMAR PLANNING FARMING PROGRAM FOR NEXT YEAR

Barnesville, Ga., November 25.—(Special.)—E. P. Drexel, vocational agent, W. C. Adams, county agent, J. B. Fleming, E. G. Horne, J. C. Martin, S. V. Milner and Professor T. O. Galloway, principal of the Sixth District A. & M. school, constitute a committee appointed by the Lamar county board of trade, whose duty it is to work out and present to the county a definite plan for operating the coming year.

This is the believed necessary because of the boll weevil's presence in this section and the plan is expected to contain a definite diversified schedule by which the farmer may grow crops which will be bringing in cash throughout the year.

The matter has been discussed considerably recently and the bankers have given assurance that the proper program which will develop live stock will probably be financed.

This committee is at work on its program and will present the result of their efforts at community meetings which are to be held in various sections of the county.

MINISTER TO SPEAK ON SEGREGATION LAW

Rev. W. J. DeBardeleben, pastor of Payne Memorial Methodist church, corner Luckie and Hunnicutt streets, will take for the subject of his next Sunday morning at the 11 o'clock service the recent action of council in passing an ordinance preventing negroes from attending white churches and prohibiting white ministers from carrying the gospel to negroes in their homes of worship.

Dr. DeBardeleben was one of the many ministers of Atlanta who protested against the ordinance and urged its veto.

"I am going to give my reasons for my position in my sermon Sunday morning," said Mr. DeBardeleben, "and I invite the public to come out and hear me."

MRS. B. A. HANCOCK, OF DECATUR, IS DEAD

Mrs. B. A. Hancock, aged 62, of 1234 Clement avenue, Decatur, a prominent resident of that town, died at a private hospital in Atlanta Friday night. The body has been removed to the establishment of Awtry and Lowndes. Funeral services will be conducted Sunday afternoon at the residence.

Surviving Mrs. Hancock are her husband, B. A. Hancock, of Decatur; two daughters, Miss Lila Hancock, of Decatur, and Mrs. E. L. Harris, of Decatur; and a son, William B. Hancock, of Decatur.

PRINCE HIROHITO REGENT OF JAPAN

Failing Physique and Mentality of Emperor Yoshohito Cause Change in Nippon Rulers.

Tokio, November 25.—(By the Associated Press.)—Crown Prince Hirohito has been designated regent of Japan. An imperial rescript making the announcement was issued by Emperor Yoshohito yesterday afternoon. It said:

"We are unable to attend in person to the affairs of state, on account of protracted illness, and accordingly appoint Crown Prince Hirohito regent with the approval of the council of princes, the imperial family and the privy councillors."

It bears the imperial signature and that of the crown prince and is signed also by Baron Makino, minister of the imperial household; Premier Takahashi and the cabinet ministers.

Bulletin on Health.
Simultaneously, a bulletin was issued stating that the emperor's mental condition was such as to preclude his further attention to state duties, traceable to an affliction of his infancy. It added that there was no serious development in his physical condition.

According to Dr. Ikebe, chief physician to Emperor Yoshohito, his condition has changed little since last October. Restraint of speech and nervous debility are declared by the physician to be his chief ailments.

The emperor continues the eccentricities which have marked his condition, but Dr. Ikebe reports they are not so frequent as formerly. He requires assistance only in mounting stairs. His appetite does not show signs of serious decline. While there is no prospect of prompt recovery, there is no reason to look for an aggravation of his condition in the near future.

Changes Expected.
The emperor and empress, it is expected, will pass the winter at Hama, removing to the Aoyama palace in Tokyo in the spring.

Changes in the make-up of the imperial household, including the retirement of Prince Yamagata from his position as chief of the privy council, are expected by the newspapers.

Yoshohito became emperor upon the death of his father, the Emperor Meiji, on July 30, 1912. The formal coronation did not occur until November 10, 1915. He was born at Kyoto August 31, 1879, and was married in 1900 to Princess Sadako, daughter of Prince Kujō. There are three other children of the imperial pair besides Prince Hirohito—Prince Yasuhito, born in 1902; Prince Nobuhito, born in 1905, and Prince Takahito, born in December, 1915.

WORD REACHES WASHINGTON.

Washington, November 25.—(By the Associated Press.)—Official notification of the appointment of the crown prince of Japan to the regency was received today by the Japanese delegation to the Washington conference from the minister for foreign affairs at Tokyo.

The message said:
"In consideration of his majesty, the emperor's inability to conduct in person the affairs of state, owing to his long continued indisposition, his imperial highness, the crown prince, has today (November 25) been constituted regent in accordance with the provisions of the imperial constitution and the imperial house law."

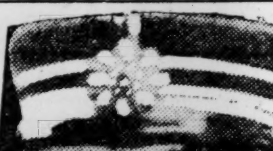

Prince Tokugawa, who is president of the house of peers, as well as a delegate to the conference, said the change in the imperial court would not, in his opinion, affect in any way Japan's policy at the conference, nor would it have any effect upon the general policy of Japan as a state.

He explained that the regency had been established because of the illness of the emperor, and that it had actually been carried out with the full assent of the emperor upon the advice of the privy council and the cabinet. Modern Japan, he added, had never seen a regency, but in olden times long before the promulgation of the constitution, the system of regency had occasionally been resorted to.

HEALER TO VISIT SAVANNAH CHURCH

REGENT OF JAPAN

PRINCE HIROHITO

600 U.S. Soldiers Leave Rhineland On Home Trip

Eighty-Two Bring German
Wives, and Some Fail to Appear.

Coblenz, November 25.—(By the Associated Press.)—Reduction in the American expeditionary force along the Rhine began today when 11 officers and 600 enlisted men left here on a special train for Antwerp to sail tomorrow for home on the transport Canigency. They are due to reach Hoboken about December 7.

In addition to the soldiers there were three nurses, 15 former service men and 82 wives of soldiers who were married in Germany. The wives of 40 of the men, eight of whom carried babies, traveled in two army hospital cars which saw service in France. The former service men with the party who were furnished transportation home by special act of congress came mostly from Paris.

A minute before the troop train left it was discovered that a satchel containing the passports of the 12 wives of soldiers had disappeared. The authorities made arrangements for a search of the train between Coblenz and Antwerp in the hope of finding the satchel and avoiding complications with the American immigration officials when the Canigency arrives in Hoboken.

A great crowd witnessed the departure of the soldiers, who were seen as overseas casual detachment number 36. Most of the men came from the fifth and 15th regiment infantries. Their enlistments expire within a few months.

In addition to the thousands of soldiers who saw the train leave the Coblenz yards there were several hundred German men, women and children who assembled to bid farewell to German girls who as wives of soldiers were leaving for a new homeland across the Atlantic.

Several of the soldiers, who were booked to leave for home did not make their appearance at the train. Officers here have taken steps to round them up for sailing on the Saint Michel about December 27.

Foch Is Given One White Pig To Join Bobcat

Mason City, Iowa, November 25.—A greeting to Iowa and a tribute to the state's part in the war was given by Marshal Foch in a brief address here this afternoon when the legion special bearing the French hero halted to permit him to pay his respects to Hansford MacNider, national legion commander, and his home town.

"I am happy to be able to salute the inhabitants of Mason City and through them salute the entire population of Iowa," he said. "I know all that you have done during the war. I know what splendid manhood you sent to France. I am especially glad to greet the people of the state which is the home of so truly brave and gallant a soldier as Colonel MacNider."

Marshal Foch was presented with a Chinese white pig, "Iowa pride," by the commander of the American Legion post here as a reminder of his visit to Iowa. The marshal smilingly accepted the gift and had it sent to the coach ahead, with the bobcat given him by the Montana delegation to the Kansas City legion convention. Mr. MacNider joined the legion party here on its way to the Pacific coast. Franklin D'Olier, a member of the party, announced it was likely "unavoidable changes may be necessary in the latter part of the schedule" but that nothing definite had been determined. An official announcement would be made later, he said.

BANKS IN NEW YORK MUST REPORT RATES

BY JAMES A. HOLLOMON.
Constitution Bureau.
Raleigh Hotel.

Washington, November 25.—(By Constitution Leased Wire.)—That public opinion throughout the country is winning in its demand that member banks of the federal reserve system shall reflect the cheaper rediscount rates recently inaugurated, is evidenced today by an order issued by Benjamin Strong, governor of the New York Federal Reserve bank, making it mandatory that member banks shall report officially the interest rates they have charged on paper presented for rediscount.

This is not new to all the federal reserve districts. For instance all banks are required by the Federal Reserve bank of Richmond to report the interest charged on items presented for rediscount, and there would seem to be less reason for such report in this district than in New York, where, because of high rates permitted, there is a greater chance for banks to charge higher rates.

With rediscounts at 4-12 per cent, New York banks have held the interest rate on commercial paper up to 5, 5 1/4 and 5 1/2 per cent, and time loans at about the same rates.

Richmond District.
In this district with a rediscount rate of 5-12 per cent the prevailing rate, except in South Carolina and a few other regions, has been 6 per cent for all paper. There has been some indication that Federal Reserve banks all over the country were about to begin a concerted drive to force member banks to bring their interest rates more in line with the rediscount rates of the various districts.

In theory, the rediscount rates of the federal reserve system are supposed to be as high or higher than the member banks' interest rates, and this theory prevailed in practice before it became necessary for the government to lower the rates. Then the reserve rates were lowered to make the purchase of Liberty bonds easier for the public, and member banks ever since have been able to "spread" they were thus able to make between what they charged their patrons and what they were charged for rediscount by the reserve banks.

Opposing Views.
The theory that rediscount rates should be as high or higher than prevailing rates has, however, had its opponents among well-informed bankers, who argue that in such case member banks would be likely to restrict credit because there would be no profit to them in making loans and then turning them over to the Federal Reserve banks at the same or a higher rate. It is claimed, too, by reducing the rate for rediscount the Federal Reserve banks would force themselves into the open market in competition with member banks to invest their funds.

Probably the Federal Reserve banks have permitted member banks to make a profit on the "spread" in the hope of inducing more state banks to join the system, as under the original theory that federal reserve discount rates should be the higher, state banks complained there was no incentive to them to join the system. The inducement held out, however, has had but little effect, and it is intimated that the federal reserve banks would force them to its original theory in all districts.

At any rate, there is not the slightest doubt that the day of excessive interest rates has passed. The federal reserve system, through its district bank governors, is preparing the way for the public to get the benefit of the cheaper rediscount rates as was recently editorially suggested by The Atlanta Constitution.

ORDINANCE ON COAL SALES IS ADVERSED

The council ordinance committee Friday afternoon advised a proposed ordinance to compel the sale by weight only of coal and coke in Atlanta. Mayor Key had sent the paper to the committee. He appeared at the session, and stated that it had been handed to him by the representative of a large coal concern, and that he had promised to hand it to the committee, but did not necessarily concur in the measure.

The committee approved an ordinance requiring automatic safety devices on all elevators installed in Atlanta buildings in the future. A proposal to make the ordinance retroactive was defeated.

TRANSPORTATION WILL BE GIVEN VETERANS

According to the latest regulation received by the veterans' bureau, ex-soldiers who are claimants for government compensation will be furnished transportation when they appear before the clean-up squad in the following instances:

(a) To all claimants requested to appear before the clean-up squad for physical examination.
(b) To all claimants who present new or pending claims for compensation when on physical examination, if it is found that the claimant is entitled to hospitalization or other treatment, or service gratuity.
(c) To claimants whose claims have been disallowed or whose compensation awards are protested when a physical re-examination is requested in support of their claims.

Sees Vindication Of Wilson Policy On Shipping Act

JAMES A. HOLLOMON.
Constitution Bureau.
Raleigh Hotel.

Washington, November 25.—(By Constitution Leased Wire.)—Another policy of the Wilson administration will be vindicated in the coming session of congress, and the majority party in the last session will be compelled again to reverse themselves.

The shipping board, backed by the present administration, has served notice that section 34 of the merchant marine act, dealing with the abrogation of 22 treaties of commerce and amity with foreign nations, must be repealed. When the merchant marine act was passed last year, President Wilson declined absolutely to obey the command contained therein that all treaties with foreign countries in conflict with the policies enunciated in the merchant marine act should be abrogated.

"The refusal of Mr. Wilson to obey the command was a mistake," said the authors of the section as "despotic." The fact that the shipping board, with the approval of President Harding, will now be of that opinion must be repeated, became known to the world when officials of the board emphatically denied published reports of alleged secret sessions of the congressional committee to forestall passage of a resolution for an investigation and accounting for the board, and the board's action under the department of commerce.

In denying the alleged sessions, officials of the board let it be known that the board's action of 1920 will be revised at the coming session of congress.

ROADS TO TELL OF SHIP CONTRACTS.

Washington, November 25.—Representatives of ten leading American railroads will appear before the congressional shipping board on December 1 to testify regarding their contractual relations with foreign shipping lines. The object of the testimony is to bring to the establishment and upholding of an American merchant marine, a statement from the board today said.

The board announced that the following contracts would be taken up: The Great Northern Railway company, which case involves the Nippon Kaishiki Kaisha; the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railway, with the Oosaka Shosen Kaishiki Kaisha; the Mobile and Ohio Railroad company, with the Nippon Kaishiki Kaisha; the Northern Central Railway company, with the International Mercantile Marine company; and the Erie Railroad company, with the International Mercantile Marine company.

CLAD IN PAJAMAS, CITIZENS ASSIST IN JAILING NEGRO

Murray Berry, 23 years old, a negro, who early Friday morning furnished considerable excitement when it is alleged that he smashed the glass in the door and entered the store of J. D. Wynn, 641 Capitol avenue, may have many charges of burglary lodged against him before the investigation being conducted by city detectives is ended, according to the officers Friday night.

After the glass broken, Berry was fired upon by T. J. Mobley, of 636 Capitol avenue, and awakened a score of neighbors, who clad in pajamas and rushed out of their homes, surrounding the store and keeping the negro inside until the arrival of Call Officers Barker and Hewell.

Other burglaries during Thursday night and early Friday morning, as reported to the police, are as follows: Charles Gamos, who conducts a confectionary store at 236 Courtland street, reported that some one stole his supply of cigars, together with other things, and a large amount of candy.

About $3 in money and a large supply of groceries were taken from the grocery store of W. C. Dodson, 322 Peachtree street.

County Policeman W. A. Wells' residence, 431 Jonesboro road, and H. W. Smith's home at 222 Angier avenue, were entered by burglars. Considerable jewelry and other things were stolen.

Fire at Huntsville.

Huntsville, Ala., November 25.—Fire early today destroyed the Spring City Milling company, Smith & company's plant, the W. S. Smith company's home at 222 Angier avenue, and other buildings, causing an estimated loss of $200,000. Among the damaged plants was Armour and company.

HOOVER TO ATTEND MARKET CONFERENCE

Athens, Ga., November 25.—(Special.)—Herbert Hoover, United States secretary of commerce, and Henry Wallace, secretary of agriculture, will speak at the Georgia Markets conference which meets at the State College of Agriculture here January 23 to 28, it was stated today. An invitation was extended then to speak at the conference several weeks ago by Dr. Andrew M. Soule, president of the State Agricultural College.

G. Harold Powell, president of the California Fruit Exchange, of Los Angeles, also has been invited to attend the Athens conference, and it is thought that he will be present. A number of other prominent men from all over the United States have been invited by the State College of Agriculture to meet with the Georgia men in the discussion of agricultural problems.

The Georgia Markets conference, which has been termed by Dr. Soule, "a truly altruistic meeting," will bring to Athens nearly a thousand of the state's leading bankers, business men and farmers who will discuss the Georgia problems, both agricultural and economic, and who will try to work out plans that will mean "better times" for both the business men and the farmers for the year of 1922.

The conference has two general purposes, according to Dr. Soule, which are as follows:
First, to disseminate information that is designed to educate the farmers into standardizing their produce for marketing, and second, to work out the details of any plans that will mean for the betterment of conditions in Georgia for another year.

CANNERY NEAR MACON TO OPERATE NEXT YEAR

Macon, Ga., November 25.—(Special.)—The purchase price for the R. F. Willingham cannery, located at Frankfort, near Macon, was $100,000, it became known today. The trustees have called a meeting of the stockholders for December 5 to confirm the sale.

The transfer, if the deal is approved, will be to the American Canned Fruit company, of Philadelphia, a subsidiary of the R. L. Dowling company, of Columbus, which had originally been announced as the purchaser. C. A. Chalmers, the president of the plant for the concern, says a considerable sum, probably $100,000, will be spent in improving the plant and it is estimated that the year's operations will cost $300,000.

The cannery property includes 200 acres, being a part of former Camp Weller. It is expected it will be a big help to the farmers of middle Georgia in providing a market for their products. Contracts are now being made with farmers for next season.

NEAR FIST BATTLE AT COUNCIL PROBE

sonalities. I am not going to mention incidents of certain trips, whether they occurred on the Tech football special or not.

Must Prove Charges.
"They started this thing and they've got to stop it in a gentlemanly way or go on and prove their charges."

Mr. Carpenter declared that "they don't know what they can't prove whether I'm employed by the Retail Food Dealers' association. The mayor asked me that and I told him it was none of his business."

Addressing his remarks to Councilman Gordon, he said, his voice shaking with emotion: "The idea of a man at his late day, his hair growing gray, a councilman, attacking me behind the council railing.

"You've got to prove your charges or apologize. You've accused me, rather by insinuation of graft, and I'll unke you swallow your words."

At this juncture Councilman Gordon sprang to his feet with a hot retort and invited the attorney to make the issue personal.

Chairman Davis called the committee to order and opened the meeting with the statement that the resolution as it stood, was imperfect; that it gave the committee no powers and provided no money. He said nobody had offered any formal charges, and nobody had furnished him with the names of any witnesses.

"I don't see how we are going to proceed very far unless we have something to travel on," remarked Councilman Woodall.

Gordon's Explanation.
Councilman Gordon spoke up and said he introduced the resolution in council on the strength of what the mayor had told him about certain charges. He asserted that he was not prosecuting or persecuting the Carpenters, declaring: "I've got nothing against them. If I had I would not serve on this committee. The mayor told me the things I've stated. That's all there is to it."

"I don't think it is the duty of a jury or the committee to go and look up evidence. We have got nothing to go on here. We've got no authority to investigate Paul Carpenter and we can't get any."

He then offered a motion to get further council backing.

the marble floor as the eager crowd surged forward in piteous efforts to attract his attention. Some wept when attendants pressed them back and they saw the tall, patriarchal figure of the doctor disappear behind a closed door.

Wistful Watches.

Long after he had turned himself away to rush to Morris Plains, N. J., for a lecture and clinical demonstration at the New Jersey State hospital, wistful-eyed men and women on crutches and others carrying crippled children, lingered in the streets outside, hoping against hope that the doctor would come back.

Dr. Lorenz told the hospital authorities he would gladly continue daily clinics as long as there were applicants. It was his contribution, he said, to help repay the debt Austria owed America for the aid she has given straying Austria.

When there was talk of raising a great fund to endow a hospital in which he could carry on his work, he said:

"Could not some little bit of it be given to my little Viennese children? It would be only fair."

the dry forces would not accept the amendment, claiming that its adoption would hamper enforcement officers in administering the Volstead act. Two days after the anti-beer bill becomes a law without the Stanley amendment comes a complaint based upon this very point.

"The facts in the case should be determined immediately and if it is found that the prohibition officers disregarded the law and actually entered and searched a house without a warrant they should be dismissed from the service and punished. However great their zeal, they were not justified in violating private rights guaranteed by the constitution and the laws of the country."

W. C. T. U. BACKS OFFICERS.

Savannah, Ga., November 25.—(Special.)—The local Women's Christian Temperance Union, of Savannah, today sent the following telegram to President Harding:

"We, the undersigned representing the Women's Christian Temperance Union of Savannah, Ga., desire to state emphatically that as Christian women homebuilders we most heartily approve of the earnest efforts of E. B. Henson to bring to light liquor stored here for illicit use and secure punishment of offenders."

The message is signed by Mrs. A. M. Hughtlett, president city union; Mrs. T. U. Norwood, president of the Armour Union, and Mrs. W. B. Stubbs, president of the Frances Willard Union. Mr. Henson is the officer here from Washington concerning whose alleged "raid" of Miss Bessie Gaden's boarding house there had been so much comment.

FULL REPORT REQUESTED.

Washington, November 25.—Prohibition Commissioner Haynes late today requested E. B. Henson, special prohibition agent at Savannah, Ga., for a full report on the raid conducted Tuesday upon a home in that city.

The attention of the prohibition commissioner was brought today to a protest received by President Harding and Senators Watson and Harris of Georgia, from Mayor Stewart of Savannah, declaring the raid was conducted without justification and apparently without warrant.

Action by Commissioner Haynes in the matter, officials said, will await the report of Agent Henson. Should this report indicate a need for investigation prohibition officials aid the matter would be sifted to the bottom and action taken if warranted.

Light workouts yesterday morning finished the training of the University of Georgia Bulldogs and the Big Green of Dartmouth, which teams clash this afternoon at Grant field in the south's biggest intersectional game of the season. The game, incidentally, will bring to a definite close the football season in this section of Dixie. The game starts at 2 o'clock.

Both teams are within a few blocks of the duelling ground at this time, the Dartmouth team having arrived at Grant field and the Georgians in their headquarters downtown. All arrangements for handling a great crowd have been completed and no slip in the preparations is foreseen.

Twenty-five thousand spectators are expected to witness the clash between the Golden Tornado and the Auburn Tiger Thursday afternoon at Grant field.

Both coaches were hopeful last night. Jack Cannell, pilot of the Big Green, interviewed at the Georgia Terrace, stated that his team could be hurt to a certain extent through injuries to several of his stars, but the eastern mentor asserted that by some shifts in the line-up he would be able to throw the strongest possible combination into action.

Georgia is in superior condition. The team came through the Alabama and Clemson games in great style and it is doubtful if any surgeon could find a bruised boy or cracked bone in the outfit. It is about the first time this season that injuries have not been thick on the Red and Black roster, but from all indications at this time no improvement could be wished for in the condition of the squad.

Arrived Yesterday.

The Bulldogs arrived late yesterday afternoon and went immediately to their hotel. No local practice was attempted. Coach Stegeman stating that his players had been sent through a long signal drill during the morning on Sanford field a bit of surprise in grid circles yesterday in the announcement that Jim Robertson, Dartmouth's big star in the backfield, would not be used in the game at his regular halfback. Robertson is going in, but he will appear at left tackle, Calder taking his place at left halfback.

This move is taken to mean that Robertson's injuries will not permit him to serve a ground game for the Grey. He will be available for forward passing, and is very probably going to prove useful in this department. The rest of the backfield will be just about as had been expected, since Seigrist was injured several days ago. Edwards is to play fullback and "Chick" Burke, Natley Walsh, will be the line.

A resident of Columbus, Strupper is 25 years old and married. He and Mrs. Strupper will move to Macon as a result of the signing of the former Tech star, many of them having given Strupper their word they would enter the Baptist institution if he would agree to come here.

Strupper said today his acceptance of Mercer's offer was not so much because of the financial reward involved, as it is for his personal friendship among Macon sport enthusiasts and his belief that he can be of real assistance to Coach In building up a first-class football team and improving other branches of athletics at the Baptist college.

REIDSVILLE'S QUINTET WINS FROM GLENNVILLE

Reidsville, Ga., November 25.—(Special.)—The Reidsville basketball team met the Glennville team on the local court in the presence of a great Thanksgiving crowd of enthusiastic fans and defeated the visitors by a score of 20 to 15.

This is the second game of the season between the old rivals, and Reidsville has won both games. Glennville has met with only one defeat, which was administered by Metter. The local team expects to win the championship for this section before the season ends.

New York, November 25.—The organization of the American Olympic association was effected today at a meeting here attended by delegates from more than 40 sport governing bodies throughout the country.

After a bitter fight the constitution for a proposed American amateur athletic federation was approved by Secretary of War John W. Weeks, was withdrawn and the constitution proposed by the American Olympic commission was adopted. The vote in favor of the olympic was 53 to 20.

It was decided, however, by a vote of 66 to 7, that the constitution proposed by the secretary of war be referred to the executive committee of the Olympic association for consideration.

After the adoption of the American Olympic association's constitution more than 40 sport governing bodies were accepted into membership, including various intercollegiate leagues, conferences and associations, the Knights of Columbus, Amateur Hockey league and American Gymnastic union. All other national organizations which control sports forming part of the program of the olympic games are eligible for membership.

The officers of the new organization were elected as follows:

President, Robert M. Thompson, Washington, D. C.; vice president, William C. Pratt, Boston, president of the National Farmers' league, and John J. McGovern, New York, representing I. C. A. A. A.; secretary, Frederick W. Rubien, secretary of the I. C. A. A. A.; treasurer, Julius H. Barnes, Duluth, representing National Association of Amateur Athletes, New York; John H. McGovern, New York, representing A. A. U.; executive committee was named as follows: Colonel A. G. Mills, New York; W. C. Pratt, Boston; Dr. R. H. Sayre, New York; General Palmer Pierce, Joseph J. McCabe, Boston; Murray Hulbert, New York; John H. McGovern, New York; Colonel Phillips, Washington, D. C. and S. A. Simons.

LAVONIA IS 21-7 VICTOR

Washington, Ga., November 25.—(Special.)—The football warriors from Lavonia High, until Thursday the undefeated champions of northeast Georgia, met defeat in the last game of the season at the hands of Washington at the fair grounds here Thanksgiving day, by the score of 21 to 7.

Lavonia came strong in the first quarter and defeated their opponents and only once during the season have had their goal-line crossed, the local team's triumph over Washington, the visitors at every point. The first while champions returned to Lavonia with a sympathetic feeling for the festive occasion, they got the axe.

The two teams were very evenly matched and from beginning to end each side fought hard for every inch of ground. Washington, in the first quarter, carried the ball over for the first touchdown and Spratt kicked goal.

Navy Big Favorite, Says Camp Team Slipping, But Should Win

BY WALTER CAMP

While the Navy is the pronounced favorite to defeat the Army in the annual clash between service teams at the Polo grounds in New York Saturday, the West Pointers will fight with their backs to the wall and such desperation sometimes results in victory.

But on the face of things, the Navy should win in spite of the fact that the boys from Annapolis have been slipping and that the Army team has taken a brace since the early season in which it made a showing that was decidedly near a comparison with the whirlwind victories which the midshipmen were putting over their opponents until they were stopped by Pennsylvania.

The Army has nothing like the star power possessed by the Navy. Larson, the Navy center, is one of the best pivots men in the country today. The center men on almost all of the other big teams have failed in their passing in important crisis and, in some instances, their failure has spelled disaster just as happened when Harvard was on Princeton's goal line with four downs in which to gain five yards. But Larson has gone through, steadily and consistently, which, after all, is the main part of the job. Barclay, in the Navy's back field, is a hard man to stop, as the Army will find. The Navy line is powerful and aggressive and the Army has no back except French, of whom the Navy has great fear. King, the Navy tackle, is a good man at kicks from placement and likely to be a great kicker in the future.

Four Claimants in Dixie Title Better Schedules Next Season

BY FUZZY WOODRUFF

The southern football season having properly closed and nothing remaining except a scattering of post-season battles, generally of minor importance, we are face to face with the unsatisfactory situation of being totally unable to rank the several teams with anything like justice or logic.

In the south we have four sectional undefeated teams—Georgia, Georgia Tech, Centre and Vanderbilt. Of these teams Georgia and Georgia Tech have suffered intersectional defeat, Georgia boxed to Harvard 10-7. Georgia Tech was smothered by Penn State 28-7. Vanderbilt and Georgia played a 7-7 tie.

Centre, with its brilliant 6-0 victory over Harvard and its uninterrupted series of triumphs over Auburn, Washington and Lee and Tulane, undoubtedly has the best record of any Dixie squad.

Still it is manifestly unfair to declare that Centre has a better football team than either of the three other undefeated southern eleven. Of these eleven only Georgia and Vanderbilt met in a game, and the result as of yet they hadn't played at all.

All Will Claim Dixie Title.

Of course the various adherents of these four schools will all claim championship, and make a case for their school. Georgia Tech, for instance, until it has met and defeated the University of Georgia.

By that same token I do not see how the University of Georgia can say that it has a better football team than Georgia Tech until it has met and defeated Georgia Tech. Both teams would be quick to accept a ranking on comparative scores, for both teams could be made to suffer in this comparison.

The chief cause of this condition, I believe, was the mapia for intersectional glory that struck the south last year. The leading southern teams got too big for their breeches, which some big eastern game on their schedule, pointed to this clash and refused to take chances, as a rule, with southern teams of equal or supposedly equal strength.

Taking the difficulties of the respective schedules into consideration there is nothing particular to choose from when we view the southern games. Georgia had the most difficult southern schedule. Georgia Tech had the easiest southern schedule. In other two schedules were betwixt and between.

Records Of Various Contenders.

Georgia played and defeated Auburn, Virginia and Alabama and tied Vanderbilt. Georgia Tech played and defeated Tennessee, Kentucky, Alabama and Sewanee and tied Auburn. Centre played and defeated Auburn, Washington and Lee and Tulane. Vanderbilt played and defeated Auburn and Virginia and tied Georgia Tech.

PASSES WIN FOR MARIETTA

Marietta, Ga., November 25.—(Special.)—Showing decided superiority in every department of the game the Marietta high school football team defeated the Cartersville high school team in the annual Thanksgiving struggle by the score of 35 to 0. Only in the second and last quarters did the two teams play on anything like even terms. In these periods the visitors held the locals to one touchdown in each quarter and in the last came within a few yards themselves of scoring.

The third quarter proved the complete undoing of the Cartersville team. In this period their defense utterly collapsed before the fierce onslaught of the Marietta team and the latter piled up 27 points in this quarter alone.

Frequently the Cartersville team made first down from scrimmage and at times got away with well executed forward passes. Occasionally they put up some excellent defensive work, but not being consistent in this phase of the game, the ball was carried across their line or around their ends almost at will by the Marietta players.

The Marietta team was the splendid defensive work of Captain Whitaker. For Marietta the receiving of forward passes on the part of Captain "Nutsy" Campbell was the sensation of the game. He rarely used the end, made several complete by pulling them down on the run in the midst of kicking players. In addition he kicked seven goals after touchdowns out of eight trials. The entire backfield, of Clay, Durham and Gifford in the line did fine work for Marietta.

Navy Rules as Betting Favorite In Great Service Game Today

Army Cohorts, However, Determined to Stop Midies in Clash at Polo Grounds.

New York, November 25.—The Army and the Navy tonight were awaiting the sound of the bugle that tomorrow should set them plunging into each other for service gridiron honors of 1921.

The lads from Annapolis had their spy-glasses fastened on what they deemed to be the star of victory, for they were giving odds in the betting. But the boys from West Point had come down the Hudson determined to bombard into oblivion the hopes of their cousins in the service, and confident that the defeats they had received from Yale and Notre Dame would only serve as braces.

Both Teams Practice.

Defeated only by Penn State after having battered Princeton into submission, the Midies took the field today at the Polo grounds and put in a period of snappy signal practice. Outside the gates, waiting to get in, was the Army and as soon as the Annapolis eleven had called it a day, the West Pointers began frisking over the gridiron.

Tonight both eleven turned in early. Tomorrow morning their supporters arrive—a regiment from West Point, and a regiment from Annapolis to march onto the field and give New York its annual scenic treat.

Arriving from Washington were officers high in each branch of the service, diplomats and statesmen, figures prominent in the civic, financial and social life of the nation. Accompanying them, to gaze for the first time on a game of American football, were foreign delegates to the arms conference.

Record Crowd Seen.

From north, south, east and west came old West Pointers able to get leave for the day's tourney, and salts whose ships were in nearby ports. And just to fill up the cracks there will pour into the stadium every American who has been able to capture a ticket.

Weather observers and custodians of the gridiron joined in promising ideal conditions for fast play. The former predicted increasing cloudiness but no rain; the latter pointed with satisfaction to field dried by today's sunshine and breeze.

French, the Army's star back, will not be in the first line-up of the afternoon for Navy, it was announced. He probably will be sent in after the first half. Conroy, Koehler, Barclay and Cruise will start for Navy in the backfield. Hughes, Nove and McKee will be used later. Coach Fowell said.

The probable line-up:

Navy: Pos. CARTSKILL, Campbell (Cap.), R. E. Gilreath, Durham, R. T. Haney, Gopher, R. G. Gaines, Clark, C. J. Walton, Manning, L. G. Smith, Gifford, L. E. Walton, Gilbert, L. E. Walton, Reed, R. H. Colbert, Field, L. H. Jones, Fowler, O. B. Jones, Ward, F. B. Jones, Substitutes—Maretz, Darby, Gopher, Brumby, Manning, DuPre for Field, Anderson for Gilbert, Cartersville, Kelley for Banks, Banks for Smith, Lipscomb for Haney.

LaSalle Defeated.

Philadelphia, November 25.—The LaSalle college preparatory school football team secured its first victory of the season today at the hands of the LaGrange high school of Chicago 7 to 6.

Team Is Sold.

St. Louis City, Iowa, November 25.—The St. Louis City Western league baseball team was sold today to Harry A. Eels of Sioux City. Eels was president of the local organization which controlled the team.

TECH HIGH IS WINNER, 19-7

Special Stocks Continue Move to Higher Levels

BY ROY E. WHITE

Tech High won the annual football classic over Boys' High Friday afternoon by a score of 19 to 7.

Jack Curran, eleven all over prep football circles as "Country Jim," played one of the greatest games of his career. He scored the first touchdown of the game in the first quarter when he rammed tackle for a neat gain, then he wiggled and circled through the entire Boys' High team for a beautiful run of 35 yards and a touchdown.

In the last quarter of the game he showed that he had the right light and striking ability with him, when he hit the line for a gain of 6 yards and lost a shoe. Referee Kalka called time out and went after the shoe. Curran would not have it.

Whitlock, the very first carried out two shoes and Curran threw them back and played shoeless until he was knocked completely out and had to be taken from the field.

B. H. S. Register.

Boys' High's lone touchdown came in the final quarter when Slate scooped up a fumble and ran 40 yards before being brought down by Jones on the 2-yard line. Tech High held Boys' High on the 2-yard line for three downs, but Captain Pool's team scored on the final play with a dive under the Tech High line.

The other touchdowns scored by Tech High were results of a 25-yard pass from Curran to Billy Richardson then ran 15 yards before scoring. Again Tech High passed in the last quarter on a 20-yard pass over the goal line from Brooks to Richardson.

Along with Curran are, Captain Richardson, Brooks, Chestnut, Holly and Hardin, that carried the boys' High for the victory Friday afternoon. Captain Richardson certainly played the greatest game of his career, receiving two passes for touchdowns and generally playing havoc with Boys' High when a play was directed around him. His tackling was deadly. Brooks, the smallest man on the team, literally made the Boys' High eleven miserable by his off-the-field plays in the last few minutes of play. Holly, tackle for the Smiths clearly showed that he is head and shoulders above any tackle in the league. Time after time he broke through and threw the Boys' High line for a loss.

For Boys' High the playing of Captain Pool in the backfield was by far the best. He carried the ball for Tech High practically all the distance and was great on defense. Wallace in the Boys' High backfield also played a good game.

Ends Play Nicely.

Another bright spot in the Boys' High eleven was the playing of their ends. Both Levinson and Garlington played a great game. Levinson, Tech High gained around the ends, but the Boys' High ends were knocked out of the play by two or three men. Tom Carroll, Ted Gilbert, and Carroll, Tech High gained around the ends, but the Boys' High ends were knocked out of the play by two or three men.

BY R. L. BARNUM

New York, November 25.—In between a holiday and half day, today's stock market was quiet. However, despite continued talk of a reaction, a number of specialties including Davison Chemical, Allied Chemical, and American International, New York Air Brake, American Ice continued to climb. The rails were again strong—Colorado & Southern, Union Pacific, Missouri Pacific preferred, Northern Pacific leading.

Colorado & Southern which is earning at the rate of $1 for its common stock is going to declare a dividend, according to today's gossip, which will go to Burlington, that company in turn being scheduled to declare an extra dividend around December which will go to Great Northern and Northern Pacific. There is also some talk of buying of Colorado & Southern by the Hill interests for the subscription books opened at 10 o'clock for the offering of French municipal bonds had been closed with the offering largely oversubscribed.

The government withdrew $9,800,000 from the banks here today. This may be for the purpose of paying treasury certificates maturing the middle of next month. It has been announced that the holders of the certificates maturing then may turn them in now and get full interest.

Reversal May Come.

In view of the controversy, still going on as to whether or not Mexican Petroleum has had its field invaded by salt water, a circular letter just sent out to the shareholders of the company, makes interesting reading. The letter reads in part as follows: "The company has been and is expected, and almost coincident with the resumption of shipments, the entire American producing area was invaded by salt water, which reduced the output of nearly all the wells in the field to a small fraction of their former yield."

Wall street would not be surprised to learn that the year-end selling of stocks to establish a new record for income tax purposes has been completed. The law and there may be buying of stocks already sold.

Frank A. Vanderlip, arriving here on the Adriatic after five months of European travel, has some new ideas on handling European debts which he will put before the economic conference in London. He believes Europe is still stuck, but the present depression in this country is only temporary. Wall street has not always agreed with Vanderlip, but it listens when he talks. He is an independent thinker and talker.

French City Bonds.

Marseilles, Lyons and Bordeaux are offering $2,779,000 6 per cent 10-year bonds at 89 1/2 to yield 7.65 per cent. These French cities sold short-term notes here early in the year on a close to 6 per cent basis. When these notes came due they were refunded at much higher interest rates. Now they are being refunded for a longer period at lower rate.

Missouri Pacific preferred is attracting much attention because of the advance on expectations of back dividends which was made in 1918. There is $71,800,000 5 per cent cumulative preferred stock and $27,000,000 6 per cent common stock was reorganized in 1916 by Kuhn, Loeb & Co. The Goulds having lost control during reorganization, earnings are running at the rate of 12 per cent if the preferred shares and 6 for the common.

The preferred sold at 62 in 1918.

IF IT FAILS!

The international conference for the limitation of armaments as a step toward permanent world-wide peace has been in session for nearly three weeks.

Practically the only thing in sight as a result of its deliberations is the limitation of sea armaments, and even that proposal is striking snags.

The pot-shooters are getting in their work, trying their level best to unsettle even the tentative agreement as to naval limitations, and which policy, if it materializes, will do at least that much toward relieving the world of its almost unbearable burden of taxation to support the spirit of war.

At best, limitation of sea armaments would be only a short step in the right direction.

Up to this time it seems to have been definitely settled that there is to be no action whatsoever upon the matter of reducing the land forces of the various nations participating in the parity.

Premier Briand's attitude appears to have settled that question.

He took exactly the position. The Constitution, prior to the delivery of his memorable address, prophesied he would take—that is, that France could not be expected to demobilize her land forces without an adequate guarantee against another invasion from her traditional enemy, Germany, a country that is much stronger, more populous, more resourceful than France, and a beaten foe that unquestionably is waiting for an opportunity to retaliate for her defeat in the recent war.

Briand practically took the position that with such a guarantee from the other powers represented at the conference, acting in concert, France would be willing to go to the limit toward disarmament on land as well as on the sea; but that without it, she could not be expected to voluntarily put herself in the attitude of inviting a situation that would be tantamount to suicide.

And he is right!

The British government has taken the position that she is ready to join in such a guarantee; indeed, Great Britain and each of the other signatories to the Versailles treaty took that position when it joined the league of nations.

One word from the United States indicating its willingness to cooperate to that end would absolutely settle the question of land as well as sea disarmament!

Unfortunately, this government refuses to utter that word, putting itself in the attitude of being willing to see the conference adjourn without having accomplished anything except a comparatively minor reduction in naval armaments, rather than to commit itself to a policy of assuming its part of the necessary obligations to promote and sustain world-wide peace.

Up to this time President Harding has gone no further than to say that he hopes to see established some kind of a vague and mysterious "Association of Nations" based wholly upon international good-will, and without any nation that deliberately disturbs the peace of the world by declaring war against another nation.

Such an "association" would be the child's play, for what would mean nothing.

Lord Curzon, British minister of foreign affairs, spoke the exact truth when, in his address delivered in London on Thanksgiving Day, he said:

"The real protection of France is the fact that the conscience of the world and the combined physical forces of the world would not tolerate the re-appearing of a great but dangerous and perpetually menacing power in Europe."

We shall convert Germany into a peaceful member of the international court of Europe only if the great powers combine not merely to enforce the treaty of Versailles, but also to make it clear that no policy of retaliation and revenge will be tolerated. Provided that Germany shows sincerity and good faith we shall assist her to play her part."

That argument is not only plausible, but it is predicated upon the fact that the safety of France or of any other nation can be made secure and permanent peace made possible "only if the great powers combine, not merely to enforce the treaty of Versailles, but also to make it clear that no policy of retaliation and revenge (or of aggression) will be tolerated."

Right there is the sum and substance of the Wilson policy—the policy that constitutes the whole warp and woof of the league of nations which the United States has repudiated and in which it has refused to join because George Washington warned the infant republic a century and a half ago to "avoid entangling alliances!"

Lord Curzon went on to say with striking forcefulness that—

"The conscience of the world and the combined physical forces of the world—and I include America—will not tolerate the re-appearing in the heart of Europe of a great and dangerous power that is always rattling the sword in its scabbard, as a menace to the peace of the world."

It is unfortunately not true, as Lord Curzon said, that he can "include America" in a coalition of national physical and moral forces that "will not tolerate the re-appearing of a great and dangerous power that is always rattling the sword in its scabbard as a menace to the peace of the world."

The American ambassador to Great Britain, Colonel Harvey, has repeatedly disavowed America's willingness to be so included!

And the attitude of the administration in power in this country with reference to the arms limitation conference, is against inclusion of America in any such combination of forces in behalf of world-wide permanent peace and security among nations!

The reverse of our present attitude is exactly what Woodrow Wilson tried and labored and almost sacrificed his very life to bring about; and it is that attitude—the attitude and the principles for which Wilson fought the bravest political battle ever fought in the history of the world—in which Lord Curzon charitably, but erroneously, places the United States.

Instead of our being entitled to inclusion with the powers striving toward the realization of the Wilson ideal and principle, we have done everything and are doing everything possible to avoid meeting the real issue—the issue which is especially uppermost before the present conference in Washington.

But what Lord Curzon says, excluding his reference to America, is absolutely sound and true!

If the conference fails it will be impossible for America to escape responsibility for its failure because its failure will be due essentially and directly to our failure to do the thing upon which its success necessarily depends.

And the possible consequence of its failure would mean that the next war, in point of horror and wholesale destruction, will completely overshadow the last; horrifying as that was!

Naval disarmament would cut little figure; for authorities all agree that the next war, if there is to be a "next war," will be fought mainly with poison gas, air craft and land instruments for wholesale destruction on a scale that staggers the imagination.

In the last war, in fact, naval strength played little part; and since then the discoveries, and the developments in instrumentalities for destruction, have been such as to justify the prediction that if another war is ever fought it will claim its toll of death in tens of thousands as compared with thousands claimed by the last!

As one observer expresses it, "it will be brief, but a war in which all of the terrible developments of science will be employed, quickly, surely, and with grim precision. The next war will see whole cities obliterated within an hour!"

That is the possibility the world is facing today as a result of the machinations of a little coterie of Wilson-hating United States senators who succeeded in preventing our entrance into the league of nations, as a result of their zeal to "get even with Wilson!"

If the world is to be made secure against future war, this conference must attain its objective and prove a success; and if, in turn, this conference is to prove a success, it must be by the adoption of a foreign policy by this country which will place us inside the pale of a league of nations clothed with the power to enforce peace, by whatever name it may be designated.

And if it fails, the world will know exactly where to place the responsibility for its failure!

The Thanksgiving poets who didn't get into print can easily switch their productions to Christmas glorifications.

Christmas toys from Germany are coming in; and in the meantime American toys are holding their own with the best. The war made the home toy-makers hustle!

A PERNICIOUS MEASURE.

It is to be hoped that the mayor's veto of the ordinance making it a crime for white people in Atlanta to teach negroes to be good citizens by giving them the benefit of religious instruction will end this remarkable agitation of racial intolerance.

The only surprising thing about it all is that council should ever have committed itself to approval of such an ordinance, especially in the face of the ruling by the city attorney that even if enacted into law it would be unconstitutional.

The passage of this ordinance, by a vote of twelve to eleven, resulted in an immediate protest from the ministers of Atlanta, who declared that it was a blow, not only at good citizenship, but at religious freedom. They very properly took the position that if the ordinance should become law it would be disregarded by the ministers and appeal would be taken to the courts.

Reduced to its last analysis, the ordinance would make it a criminal offense for white people to teach religion and good citizenship to negroes.

No white man would be permitted to go inside of a negro church for that purpose, nor would a negro be permitted to hear the Word of God preached even from the vantage point of the gallery of a white church.

Such legislation would be a repudiation of every dollar that has been spent and of every life that has been sacrificed in all these years by the good people of this country in sending missionaries to Africa to carry the light of the Cross into the pagan darkness of that continent as it was found by the white man—and which continent, by the efforts and sacrifices of these very missionaries, has largely been redeemed to Christianity and civilization.

It would be an assault upon the very fundamentals of the Christian religion, and, more than that, it would be a barrier against the spread of the ideals of good citizenship.

It is the duty of the white race to assist, by every possible means, in making good citizens of the large element of our citizenry that is represented by the black race, composed of men, women and children who will be either good citizens or bad; either Christians in the broader sense of the word, or criminals.

Many of the leaders of the negro race are co-operating in every possible way with the white race to secure for the rank and file of the negroes the benefit of the white man's centuries of experience in Christianity and civilization, so that the negroes might profit by good example and as a result of this edifying influence, be made good citizens instead of becoming an extra burden upon the community as criminals.

The solution of all that is involved in the "race problem" is to be reached ultimately through applied Christianity, the basis of which is justice and fair treatment—both of which are flaunted by this action of council!

Considering all that is involved in it, it is not to be wondered at that the ministers of the churches of this city promptly rose in revolt against this intolerant proposal.

And the fact that eleven members of council voted against it while only twelve voted in the affirmative, indicates very clearly that it will be impossible to muster the two-thirds voting strength necessary to override the veto.

Let us hope that this will be the last of it.

VANISHING LANDMARKS.

"The Fugitive Nigger" of the fiction seems to have become a reality, judging by the regret expressed in certain sentimental quarters for the vanishing of the old-time blacksmith shop.

Recently The Springfield Republican stated that "the village smithies" were few and far between in New England—that their shops had been as largely eliminated from the landscape as the wooden Indian before cigar stores.

It had an attractive illustrated page of blacksmith shops at whose doors the school children loved to stand, to "hear the bellows roar," and the ring of the hammer on the anvil; and to "watch the red sparks fly," and the mournful line under one of the pictures was, "Under the spreading chestnut tree no more the village smithies stand!"

The horses waiting to be shod have also vanished: The automobile has practically put them all to the discard, so that now a little jockey buggy, drawn by a faithful, affectionate family horse, is only seen in remote rural districts, and never, or seldom, on city streets.

And the district must indeed be remote whose roads are untraveled by speeding automobiles and where old, loved things have not been replaced by new!

It's the way of the world, and of course we wouldn't get any where, in this day and time, if we lingered long to dream before old landmarks: We've got to keep up with the procession; we must go fast, or fall far behind in the onward, crowded race!

But it's well for the world that it still keeps a corner in its heart for old and dear remembrances; that once pleasant, familiar things do not fade quite away, and that while we may sweep the skies of airplane wings, we never lose sight of the landmarks Love calls "Home."

BUYING CONFIDENCE.
The steady advertising store is, in and of itself, a guarantee of the goods it sells through its daily announcements in a standard newspaper.

It is the one in which the buyer has absolute trust, and it establishes what may be termed "buying friendships" with a confident public.

In this respect, as pointed out in The Philadelphia Record, its faithfully followed plan means "safety first" in a natural, rewarding way. It is safety to itself, and to its patrons.

In a recent article on the right advertising, the Philadelphia paper puts it in this straightforward way—

"Suppose you were to buy at a store which never advertised, and whose signs are of the canvas 'grand clearance sale' type, a raincoat guaranteed for five years; 'And, suppose that after one month your raincoat cracked, or leaked like a sieve; and, suppose you were to take it back to the seller and insist that you should be given a new one, or that your money should be refunded—

"How many chances are there in a hundred that he would make good?"

It would be different, of course, in the case of an advertising firm that had built up years of confidence, in a community between seller and buyer, for the reason that—

"You can depend upon the word of a merchant or manufacturer whose fidelity to his promises is an essential part of his capital, made so by advertising."

"It will save you much money, time and annoyance to deal with the houses that advertise regularly."

That is the well-said word of our Philadelphia contemporary and its truth is daily demonstrated in many business transactions.

Every business is advertised by its patrons, as well as by the well-directed word that sells the goods through the newspapers. To hold the business which it gets, it must make good in every particular. Advertising helps to make its reputation, and it must live up to it.

MORE HOME PRODUCTS.

Next year is going to be one of great production on the general home supply plan.

That is why—as pointed out by The Ocala (Ga.) Star, the Georgia farmer can afford to be optimistic, since that plan has been worked so well wherever it has been adhered to.

"Cotton will be planted, of course," says the Ocala paper, but there must be more auxiliary crops—

"Don't forget that the world has to eat. The world is not going to live entirely on corn and velvet beans, either. The people who buy food want canned tomatoes, canned corn, cured potatoes, canned peaches, canned beans and lots of other things which can be produced on the farm. The iron and steel trade, a barometer of business conditions, was running for months on end on a rapid upward curve. Never in the history of the country was the depression in iron and steel so great as it has been for the last year and a half. A similar condition has existed in a good many other industries."

Not Due to War.
Many people have been led by false political economy to believe that this situation was the natural and inevitable outcome of the war. They have been taught that it was a normal condition somewhat similar to that which has followed every other war. They have, therefore, accepted the condition as one which had to be endured but this is false political economy. There is no necessity for such desperate depression in America for we have suffered but very little from the war and had very positive reasons for our prosperity, for the war had not yet begun to affect our business conditions, and we had the foodstuffs with which to feed it.

The world was lacking in clothes and we had the cotton with which to clothe mankind.

The world needed everything which we could produce, indeed everything which the world could produce, to fill up the vacuum created by five years of war.

It is true that some parts of Europe were not in a position to buy freely but the 1,000,000,000 people in the Orient were in better financial shape than they have ever been, and South America had not suffered from the war and naturally turned to us to supply the endless things which its development demand, but suddenly the business prosperity of the world was halted, a chill struck not only this country but every other.

Due to Deflation.
From the beginning I have never accepted the view that this sudden collapse of business was a necessary event to follow the war. In 1917, basing my judgment on a study of world finance after every great war of the last century, I anticipated that if at the close of the war the financial interests of the world undertook, as they had done in the past, a drastic deflation of credits, there would be world business chaos. From that day to this I have tried unceasingly to drive that fact home. At the time I was writing I was convinced that the position that now many of the foremost economists of this and other countries and many of the foremost bankers of America and of England are very emphatic in stating that the deflation of the credit policy inaugurated by the Federal Reserve Bank for the break down of credit and of business throughout the world.

The most remarkable report which has been made on this subject has recently been issued by Professor Cassel, of Sweden, pronounced by Lloyd George and others to be, probably, the ablest of his pre-eminent abilities in the present time. By reason of his pre-eminent abilities as a financier, he has been asked by the league of nations to prepare a report for the Brussels conference on world finance. He has recently issued for the league the second report in which he scores the deflation policy of this country and its effect on the world.

Wind o' the Dark

BY FRANK L. STANTON

Sings the Wind o' the Dark, where the children stay:
"The stars are gone, and I've lost my way!
Here shines shelter the lost night win—
Open the home-doors and let me in!"

But the Mother there, where the shadows creep,
Says: "I've rocked my little ones fast asleep,
And here is no rest for you to take,
For your song of sorrow their hearts would break!
If the Dark has never a home for you,
There are little ones that are homeless, too!"

Cries the Rain o' the Dark, at the windowpane:
"I sing and sigh through the night in vain;
Friendless still on the world I fall
Over the sheltered rest of all."

But the Mother-heart to the Rain replies:
"Night is not needing a song of sighs;
Fall soft through the Dark where my watch I keep:
Wake not the dreaming eyes of sleep!
If the Dark has no friendly word for you,
There are little lives that are friendless, too."

Claims Deflation Policy Has Cost U. S. Total of $30,000,000,000

An Amendment to the Christian Commission.

Perhaps it would be difficult for the average layman to understand the shock which the ministers of religion received on Tuesday morning, when they read in the paper that our municipal council had undertaken, in a legal ordinance, to censor their ministry, and to prescribe limitations as to where, and with whom, people should worship. I am quite sure that this modern "twelve," who with such cheerful courage assumed the functions of the ancient ecclesiastical council, were not without the history of this kind of legislation. It is nothing less than the story of the struggle for religious freedom, whose pages are radiant with the revelations of the heroic spirits of men and women, who have gladly died on battlefields or at the stake, rather than have their souls imprisoned by the bigotry of tyrants.

One wonders if these twelve political-religious legislators have ever read the credentials of the Christian ministry. Let me write it down clearly, and then place beneath this commission delivered from the "mountain top," the modern amendment delivered from the pinnacle of the city hall.

The Commission was a Prohibition.
"And Jesus came unto them, and spake unto them, saying: All authority hath been given unto me in heaven and earth. Go ye, therefore, and make disciples of all the nations, baptizing them into the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost; teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I command you; and lo, I am with you always, even unto the end of the world."

Now read the deliverance of the Atlanta council, which forbids "any priest, archbishop, prelate, preacher, pope, minister of the gospel, or pastor in any church, or other person or persons, to maintain any house, church or other edifice for the joint congregation and worship of white and colored people, either at such religious services, or any preliminary services, mass or Sunday school."

How far would Christianity have gotten if it had been imprisoned within the Atlanta ordinance? One's mind turns instinctively to the marvelous story of Pentecost. "Tartarians and Medes and Elamites, and the dwellers in Mesopotamia, in Judea and Cappadocia, in Pontus and Asia, in Phrygia and Pamphylia, in Egypt and in the parts of Libya about Cyrene, and the Greeks, and the Romans, and the Jews, and the proselytes, and the Circassians, and the Arabians, we do hear them speaking in our tongues the mighty works of God."

In Search of a Record.
Of course, Mayor Key, as we all expected, in accord with his splendid record along this line, vetoed this wretched resolution. Nevertheless, we ought to sit down with the truth, as disagreeable as it is, that twelve men, a majority of our council, voted to annul the great commission of Christ, violate the constitutional rights of the citizens of Georgia, and attempt to silence the ministers of religion. We are forced, here at least, to inquire into motives, and examine the spirit sort of which so horrid a thing could have been born.

Was it a blow struck at some particular church? By what right does our municipal government strike at any religious group, no matter how radically its members may disagree with, or condemn, that group, as private citizens? It seems to me that nothing so horrid and hurtful to peace and prosperity has found expression in the life of our beloved city as this type of religious persecution.

And if not for the sake of our Christianity and

NAVAL CUT. MAIN ACHIEVEMENT OF ARMS CONFERENCE

Far Eastern Question Far From Settled, Asserts Frank Simonds

By Reduction of Naval Armaments United States Has Relinquished Power to Curb Japan's Aggressions in China, Expert Claims—Fears Japs Will Not Change Policy.

BY FRANK H. SIMONDS.

Washington, November 26.—(Special).—While the moment for a complete appraisal of the work of the Washington conference has not yet come, we can see certain things clearly now, the first of which is that the practical achievement of this gathering will be comprehended exclusively in a reduction of naval armaments.

The primary question that had to be answered when the conference opened was that of scope and purpose. Before Mr. Hughes spoke on Thursday, November 12, the conference of Washington occupied in the minds of the world a position as interesting and significant as did the Paris conference three years ago. Was it the purpose of Mr. Hughes to take up the work as it had fallen from the hands of the Paris statesmen? Were we going back to the league, back to the European problems? At least many voices clamored for such a course.

On the other side was raised an equally insistent question: Were we to put our influence, our force behind a project to reorganize the Far East, to restrain Japanese ambition and aid in the restoration of Chinese independence?

Mr. Hughes in his opening speech avoided both questions. He made no reference to Europe. He dismissed the Far East with that scant mention which henceforth robbed it of real significance. On one subject and one alone Mr. Hughes consolidated all his energy. He did not even undertake to disarm the world. He specifically, definitely, dramatically sought to limit the sea power of the three great naval nations of the planet. That was all.

Here, then, since Mr. Hughes deliberately chose to make it so was the sole objective of the Washington conference. No one can mistake this fact, even though its importance may be exaggerated or improperly minimized. For better or for worse Mr. Hughes decided we should talk ships, and ships will be the subject alike of the conference and of the tangible agreements that emerge.

Have Given Up Sea Leadership.

Now, one has to appreciate in estimating the situation exactly the problem to be faced. The United States has undertaken to give up, if not actual supremacy on the high seas, at least an exercise of that power indisputably hers, which would have made her in a short space of years beyond challenge on the eastern and western oceans.

We have given up that power, potential, if not actual, without compensation. Did we desire compensation. That question remains to be debated hereafter. In substance we have said to Great Britain, still the greatest sea power, but by consequence of the extent and expense of the last war, unable to retain that position in competition with us: "We are willing to concede you temporary superiority and permanent equality provided you will agree to a common program preceded by a ten-year holiday." The British have accepted the proposal. Not only were they bound to accept it, but it represents for them an unmistakable victory in that it saves them from a losing race.

We have said to Japan: "Accept our standards of relative strength on the high seas," and substantially the Japanese will accept our standards because for them sea power is defensive and not offensive, and the more our fleets are reduced and the more British fleets are reduced the safer Japan is not attacked by our fleet or the British fleet, but also from challenge as she applies her policy on the Asiatic continent. Thus Japan, too, has won a victory in the naval discussion.

Now, what of the United States? We fundamentally have agreed to resign supremacy upon the seas of the world at a time when no nation and no two nations could challenge us. We have chosen to adopt the old British ratio of building against the two naval powers nearest to us. But in resigning this power no one can mistake the fact that Mr. Hughes has than the great western powers have done, but they have been done more recently and more systematically. To continue doing these things means to destroy the independence of China. It means ultimately an attempt on the part of Japan to exercise complete political dominion over the Celestial kingdom, now becoming a very planetary republic in name at least. If Japan continues to do these things the Far Eastern question, so far from improving, will worsen. There is nothing in the agreement that will be signed at Washington which will or can affect this fact. On the contrary, the limitation of naval armaments constitutes the presentation to Japan of a clear opportunity to exploit China if she chooses. In agreeing to the reduction of our naval program and the scrapping of some of our best ships we are agreeing to give Japan a free hand; we are removing the last restraint which we may possess, and we are asking the British similarly to abandon such restraint as they may have.

Power to Curb Japs Is Gone.

After the program proposed by Mr. Hughes is adopted—and I believe that substantially it will be adopted—neither Great Britain nor ourselves separately or jointly will be in a position to venture to coerce Japan, if Japanese policy follows the pathway which it has followed in recent years. This is the risk. It is a plain risk. It is an unescapable risk unless we are willing to bear the consequence of competition in naval armaments, a consequence which represents increased taxation and may lead to eventual war.

Eventually, the success or failure of the Washington conference, so far as the Far East is concerned, will depend entirely upon the direction which Japanese policy takes hereafter. No American should permit himself to be deluded into the notion that any of the documents to be signed up to the Far East has the smallest value in itself or that there remains the smallest chance of its enforcement after the program of naval limitation has been adopted.

It depends upon Japan herself whether she will interpret her engagements undertaken here honorably or wisely. If she does, the Washington conference will prove a landmark in the history of the Far East. If she does not, the Washington conference will be a meaningless gesture. It may even be more than that—a dangerous experiment in disarmament since we shall eventually have to arm again against Japanese aggressions taken on a magnitude which makes a menace to our own security.

From the American point of view the opening speech of Mr. Hughes must be backed is whether the limitation of naval armaments represents a gain for the peace of the world. As I have pointed out often enough in preceding articles, the question of armaments has precious little to do with the causes of war. It is an American delusion that the existence of armed forces or the prevalence of armed ships brings war. Wars are caused by totally different factors. They are precipitated by the conflict of rival aspirations or conceptions or interests among the peoples of the world. The existence of the German army did not cause the last war. The existence in the German mind of certain hopes and certain fears was the factor which was responsible for the war.

Europe's View Of Conference.

The view of Europe is totally different. The Washington conference will seem to Europe as great a failure as the Paris conference did to the United States. The limitation of naval strength will not even interest the French or the Italians, while German cynicism is already unmistakeable. The American notion that wars are caused by armaments finds no European echo. Moreover, Europe knows that our people have not yet understood, that there will be no great reduction in taxation or expenditure in consequence of the limitation of naval programs. We shall avoid the huge increase in naval expenditures which would follow competition in building, but that is the single practical benefit.

America sees the world disarming. Europe sees those dangers which constitute for it the causes of war undiminished and unaffected. Europe hoped that the Washington conference would be marked by an American return to active participation in world affairs and in European affairs. Europe now recognizes that the Washington conference will mark a further retreat; that we are still moving away from Europe, not toward it.

I have never shared the view of the English writers that the Washington conference could prove a turning point either in world history or in American relations to Europe. But there is no mistaking the fact that this hope or delusion supplied the dominating element in the thought of most, not all, of the journalists who came here from abroad. Not all of them have perceived the fallacy which moved upon deeply, but none of them can permanently escape the realization that the United States has once more eluded the effort to entangle her in the one way that we could have remained deaf to the appeals coming to it from European shores.

Mr. Hughes believes that if the great powers agree to begin to disarm on sea they will presently agree to begin to disarm on land, that in fact the habit of agreeing will grow and spread until, step by step, we arrive at a peaceful world. All his policy and all his course in this conference were predicated upon this faith. In this faith he is in agreement with the mass of the American people who are even more willing than the secretary of state to believe that the limitation of armaments means peace.

But when the conference has additioned after fixing the ratio of naval strength and describing the number of ships to be scrapped and the length of time in which the governments' shippings of the world shall be idle, there will remain all the major questions to be settled and the grievous danger today is that the American people will be deluded, as no other people can be, into the belief that war has been made less likely by the Washington conference.

Fears Japanese Aggression in China.

A war between the United States and Japan has been made less likely because we have retired from the Far East. We have resigned the power to coerce Japan and thus protect China. The exercise of such power would have led to war. The abandonment of such power will lead to a new aggression or it will lead to a modification of Japanese policy toward China precisely as Japan chooses and will.

The agreement with Great Britain to limit shipbuilding immediately saves the British from the necessity of financial outlays which they cannot safely undertake or the resignation of the position of first sea power, which they have occupied for centuries. All things considered we have agreed in the one way that we could leave Great Britain substantially the first sea power of the world for the immediate future at least. There never was any danger of war with Great Britain. Only the most stupid of all policies could have led to a competition in shipbuilding. What remains to be seen is whether as a result of our resignation of supremacy on the sea which was within our grasp Anglo-American relations will improve or worsen.

In sum, the practical result of the Washington conference will be a reduction in naval programs and therefore the pruning of naval estimates. The taxpayers will not pay less, but they will not have to pay more. But the conditions of war and peace will remain the same in the world except in so far as the Washington conference may have succeeded or may have failed in promoting a friendlier spirit between the countries represented there. This is the fact. To believe otherwise is to invite another awakening such as followed the adjournment of the Paris conference.

A failure of the Washington conference will not be in any obvious and direct way such as might have been feared before the first session. Nothing like a rupture has ever been even conceivable. Most of the clashes which have occupied space in the newspapers have been at least semi-imaginary and never actually serious. It is almost to be regretted that the desire on the part of the press to appear friendly sometimes prevented the pressing home of points which might usefully have been adopted. Unmistakably we shall have many, conceivably too many, questions postponed. Beyond all else it is a mistake to think of the Washington conference as likely to settle anything. It has avoided some things which it was advisable, desirable, necessary to avoid. At best it may prove a prelude to better international relations and new judgments. At worst it is a novel experiment. Mr. Wilson tried at Paris to do everything at once. Mr. Hughes at Washington has tried to do one thing and no more. Mr. Wilson believed in idealistic principles. Mr. Hughes believes in tangible things. The conference at Washington has belonged to Mr. Hughes. His success has been more immediately complete than that of Mr. Wilson. It remains to be seen whether it will be more lasting significant. My Nerves Were Completely Shattered—I Was Weak Worn out and "All In"; My Business Was Ruined; I Was a Failure in Life; All as a Result of Exhausted Nerve Force

How you may quickly help put new nerve force into worn out exhausted nerve cells, and remarkably increase your strength, power and endurance. Use it 10 to 20 weeks' time.

For sometime I had noticed that I was quite nervous and often annoyed very much by trifles. When I was in an irritable mood at home, my wife would occasionally say to me, "You are a sign of age, and I would irritate me still more. I know I was under constant strain, but I never thought that I was a nervous man like I was, could go all to pieces and become a physical and mental wreck. But one day this is just what happened to me, and very suddenly at that. Nature had given me such warning symptoms as a dull aching pain in the lower back part of my head, and sometimes a sense of fullness in the front of my head. Often I was restless and could not sleep well at night, and I noticed that I would get tired very quickly, but my principal warning symptom was nervous irritability and if I had given attention to it at the right time, I might have saved myself untold misery and thousands of dollars because after my nervous breakdown came about, I still tried to go on with my business and thereby lost nearly everything I had. I found out that exhausted nerve force not only ruins a man physically but mentally as well.

The above is a hypothetical case, which a physician says may well illustrate thousands of children ruined; all through exhausted nerve force or neurotic conditions. Very few people realize the awful suffering and torture the word "Nuxated" on every pack. After using Nuxated Iron we shall be pleased to have you write us what it does for you for publication. Your name will be withheld. Nuxated Iron for the blood and nerves is sold in Atlanta by Jacobus Pharmacists and all good druggists.—(adv.)

GENERAL TRADE---Ice Cream Makers and Supply Men Own Atlanta This Week

FOREIGN TRADERS PLAN BIG MEETING FOR DECEMBER 5

A meeting of the Atlanta Foreign Trade club, Monday, December 5, in the town room of the chamber of commerce, will mark the beginning of a year of renewed activities of this organization that, in the opinion of officers of the club, will prove of much practical benefit to members and the foreign trade interests of Atlanta at large.

Dinner will be served for members at 6:30 p. m., and an open meeting, to which the general public is cordially invited, will be held at 8 o'clock.

The Atlanta Foreign Trade club was organized November, 1920, as an outgrowth of the "Plattsburg" training school of foreign commerce, which was conducted in Atlanta under the joint auspices of the Atlanta chamber of commerce, Southern Commercial congress and the Pan-American union.

Among the purposes to which the club is dedicated are the following: To promote interest in foreign trade among Atlanta manufacturers, to serve as a community clearing house on all matters pertaining to foreign markets and exporting methods and practices; to provide a medium for the interchange of ideas and personal experiences of members; and to promote in Atlanta a real exporting fraternity; to encourage and take an active part in bringing to Atlanta every direct and co-operative agency that will serve the foreign trade interests and the growth thereof; to encourage shipments via our southeastern ports, and the establishment in Atlanta of the buying and selling offices and warehouses of northern and western manufacturers and shippers, for both export and import business, and to advertise Atlanta in foreign markets and acquaint those abroad with our products and the desirability of purchasing from this market.

Officers of the Atlanta Foreign Trade club are: James Metcalf, president; Dr. Guy King, vice president; Harry O. Mitchell, honorary vice president; G. A. Kubler, treasurer, and B. J. Brown, secretary.

headquarters for the southern, the North Carolina State and Tri-State associations. The supply men were established at the Piedmont. The registration is expected to show about 250 supply men and about 350 ice cream men.

The exhibition will be formally opened at the Auditorium at 9 o'clock Monday morning, with appropriate exercises. The convention proper, however, will not get under way until Wednesday, when the Southern association will hold its first session. Mayor Key will deliver the address of welcome.

Governor Hardwick will be the principal speaker at a banquet to be given the ice cream men at the Piedmont Thursday evening by the supply men. The entertainment program also includes "smokers" at the Piedmont, a barbecue at the Auditorium, and a drive to Stone Mountain.

Great Value of Exhibits. Secretary Robert Everett announces that the exhibition will give the ice cream men opportunity to view approximately $150,000 worth of ice cream equipment. Virtually everything concerning the manufacture of ice cream will be on display, the "show" representing as it will products of factory and field, that run into millions of dollars annually.

The first regional southern show follows a number of similar affairs conducted by the supply men in other sections of the country. Among the cities that have been the scenes of their exhibitions are Atlantic City, Philadelphia, Buffalo and Portland.

The coming of the body to the south is taken by leading ice cream men of this section as official recognition of the important strides the industry has made in Dixie in recent years.

Supply officials are confident that the exhibition will have an important bearing upon future development for the production of ice cream in the south.

Southward the Course Of Dairying Takes Its Way

BY JAMES J. HARVEY
Manager, Dairy and Ice Cream Dept., Bessire & Company

The above title, a paraphrase on the westward course of civilization, is very apropos of the present southward tendency of the dairy industry.

Not many people of the southland and practically no northerners, unless their business relations are closely associated with the present status of the industry throughout the southern states, know of the rapid development that is taking place in dairying south of the Mason and Dixon line, and particularly in the states of Alabama, Georgia, Florida and South Carolina.

Dairying in the south has always been carried on in an oscillating way due to the general apathy of the southern farmer for raising his own dairy feed, and also to the lack of an all-year-round market for his milk and cream. His mind has been running in a single furrow, and his thoughts of farming have always reverted to the one-crop system—that of cotton.

It required the destruction of Sodom and Gomorrah, in Biblical days, to teach the people the wickedness of their daily life, but I believe it is one far-fetched parallel to say that it has taken the destructive activities of the boll weevil to convince our southern farmers of the necessity of diversified farming, and especially to the dairy side of farming.

Dairy Cow and Prosperity.

The dairy cow and prosperity have always marched hand in hand in all climates, and I believe it no wild conclusion to remark that as dairying properly develops in the south, prosperity will increase. Prosperity in financial returns is not all the benefit that will accrue. Better nourishment and better health and finer products in the human diet, says that "the nations that have used large amounts of dairy products in their diet are the most efficient and highly developed races of the earth," and that "the keeping of dairy animals was the greatest factor in the history of the development of man from a state of barbarism." So, from a health standpoint, as well as from all other angles, dairying should be extended.

South Supplying Market.

To get back to the text of this article—"Dairy Development in the South." I recently had a letter from the owner of a large dairy plant in the north inquiring for causes of his inability to sell his product in Florida and the south. He stated that when recently he quoted his former customers the lowest possible price on his product, delivered, they had told him that his prices were entirely out of line; that they had been offered the same quality product at much lower figures. He stated further that he knew of only two points that were competitors of his—one in New York and the other a large dairy product plant in southern Alabama.

It was necessary for me to inform this owner that he was not abreast of the present-day conditions in the south. I told him that business he had formerly enjoyed in Florida during the tourist season was gone from him, never to return; that the south was taking care of its own.

I then cited some of the recent strides in dairying in Georgia. The first milk condenser in Georgia has just been completed in Moultrie, where all kinds of condensed milk are now being made. Sweet cream and milk is being shipped into Florida from several points in this state, which is a new development from even last year.

Sour Cream Outlet.

By far the greatest factor in developing dairying in Georgia is the growth of the sour cream movement. Six months ago there was not a sour cream station in Georgia. Today there are more than a score, and they are increasing daily. The cause of this increase is the establishing of churning creameries for this sour cream.

Several creameries are now in operation. The last one, and probably one of the most complete in the state, is that of the Belmont Dairy company of Atlanta. Electrically-driven machinery, for the conversion of all grades of cream into finished butter, is now in operation in the Belmont plant.

Sour cream from all over the Atlanta section of the state is arriving daily for churning purposes. Mr. Zimmer, the owner, states that he has no trouble in disposing of his entire make to the local trade. Local hotels are advertising the fact that they serve "Atlanta Mail" creamery butter. We predict that in two years Georgia will be producing all the butter she consumes.

Thus, the rapid increase that has been made in the last six months in Georgia indicates the southward trend of dairying.

This is the time when the wise Thanksgiving turkey goes on a hunger strike.—Reading News-Times.

What a 'Perfect Package' Is--Ten Rules to Go By

One of the developments of the campaign being waged by railways, express companies and earnest shippers over the country to make November a "perfect package month," is a set of ten rules prepared by Alvin Lovinsgood, whose special articles on better packing are appearing each Sunday exclusively in The Constitution, that has attracted national attention. As a result of the indorsement given these rules by C. G. Walker, Atlanta agent for the Southern railway, ten thousand copies are being distributed to shippers over the territory covered by this great railway system. For the benefit of shippers who may not otherwise receive a copy, the set is here reproduced.

1. Choose the perfect and proper container for shipping your products—not the cheapest.

2. Have your packers use every precaution in packing.

3. Secure your shipping containers well with flat box band, sealed out, or if package is suitable, with round wire tied and sealed. Seal corrugated and fiber containers with gummed kraft tape of good quality and weight (preferably printed), also strapped with flat metal band.

4. Secure your shipments always—showing your name as shipper as well as the consignee's, and caution marks.

5. Whenever possible avoid using tags, labels or poor marking methods—it cheapens your products and causes many losses.

6. Make out your bills of lading in a most legible manner, taking every precaution to describe article, and give clearly all names and addresses.

7. Don't ever get in too big a hurry ages.

8. Always use cement coated nails where any package is to be nailed. Brace heavy material well in cars to prevent any possible breakage.

9. Remember the possible punishment any package is liable to receive and insure against the extreme.

10. Don't forget that you as a shipper are paying your part in losses and damages, as it must go back to overlook the security of your pack—the carriers in added freight rates.

Ice Cream Show Important Event For the South

Supply Men and Three Manufacturers' Associations to Meet.

With special trains bringing delegates from various points in the south and other sections, Atlanta is in readiness for the opening Monday of the first southern regional ice cream exhibition ever held in this section.

Fifteen southern states are sending delegates to witness the "show" of the widely famed Association of Ice Cream Supply Men, who have staged many similar trade pageants in other parts of the country.

Robert Everett, secretary of the supply men's body, was on the field early last week, with the assistance of Assistant Secretary C. W. Caldwell, preparations from then on moved rapidly. The national supply body had the co-operation of the "Dixie Flyers," the southern body of supply men, in making preparations for the exhibition. This organization had on the scene last week, three of its officers to help do the job well. These gentlemen are: N. Miller, Jr., of Birmingham, president; Thomas J. Stewart, of Cincinnati, secretary, and J. W. Mulligan, of Louisville, treasurer.

Next Season Looks Good.

Officials of the Southern Association of Ice Cream Manufacturers, whose ninth annual convention will be held in connection with the exhibition, look for a record attendance.

J. W. Clifton, secretary, makes the following announcement:

"While conditions have not been the best for the southern manufacturer this season on account of readjustment of prices and conditions generally we are not at all discouraged, and we are determined to go into next season with an idea of selling more ice cream and better ice cream than we have ever sold before."

"With the assurance that the tax on ice cream cones, better known as the 'nuisance tax,' will be eliminated before another season, we can again go after the masses of small dealers who have been forced to discontinue the sale of ice cream as they were not prepared to keep correct records of their sales, causing many of them to get in 'dutch' with the revenue department."

"We have been very fortunate in securing very able men to handle the subjects on our program in Atlanta, and we have every reason to believe our program will be carried out to the letter."

Coming in Train Loads.

A special train Saturday brought scores of exhibitors from various points in the east and north, leaving from New York.

A special train is expected today from Texas, bearing a large delegation of Lone Star ice cream manufacturers.

The ice cream manufacturers will be quartered at the Ansley, official headquarters for the southern, the North Carolina State and Tri-State associations. The supply men were established at the Piedmont. The registration is expected to show about 250 supply men and about 350 ice cream men.

The exhibition will be formally opened at the Auditorium at 9 o'clock Monday morning, with appropriate exercises. The convention proper, however, will not get under way until Wednesday, when the Southern association will hold its first session. Mayor Key will deliver the address of welcome.

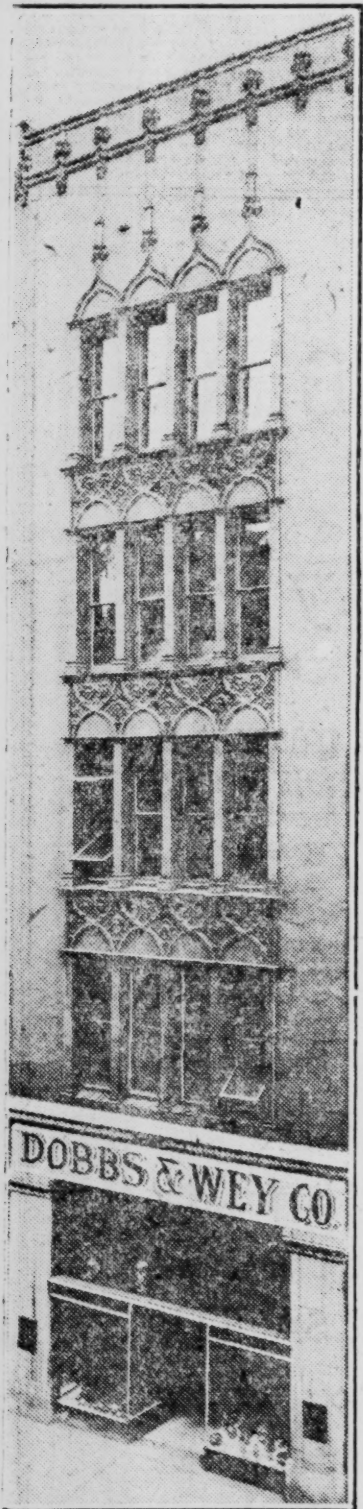

Governor Hardwick will be the principal speaker at a banquet to be given the ice cream men at the Piedmont Thursday evening by the supply men. The entertainment program also includes "smokers" at the Piedmont, a barbecue at the Auditorium, and a drive to Stone Mountain.

Great Value of Exhibits. Secretary Robert Everett announces that the exhibition will give the ice cream men opportunity to view approximately $150,000 worth of ice cream equipment. The coming of the body to the south is taken by leading ice cream men of this section as official recognition of the important strides the industry has made in Dixie in recent years.

Supply officials are confident that the exhibition will have an important bearing upon future development for the production of ice cream in the south.

Sees Defeat Of Valuation Plan Of New Tariff

A customs expert, prominently identified with the treasury service, stated during the past week to a representative of The New York Commercial, that from a survey which he had personally conducted in Washington, congress would be compelled to abandon the proposal regarding the American valuation of imports as provided for in the Fordney tariff bill. This expert, who requested that his name be withheld from publication as all government employees are cautioned against giving out information of this character, asserted that the data now being collected by the special agents in New York and elsewhere would prove conclusively that the adoption of the American valuation plan, particularly at this time, would be foolhardy and impossible of administration.

He brought out an interesting phase of the situation, one not touched upon before, when he pointed out that many manufacturers had raised objections against being compelled to give wholesale prices upon which appraising officers would be obliged to base their duty calculations if the new scheme is adopted. He further stated that little has been published regarding the great mass of letters that have been received for congressmen protesting against the enactment into law of the American value plan.

"If some substitute or compromise is offered by importers and retailers who are leading the fight against this measure," he said in conclusion, "the senate finance committee will be quick to seize upon it as a way out of the difficulty."

Reading Course In Exporting By U. S. Expert

Covers Wide Range of Information Needed by World Trader.

A knowledge of local, regional, national and international economic resources, broadly defined to include labor transportation and capital, as well as natural resources, is becoming increasingly necessary whether one is directly engaged in any line of business or not. Without it, intelligent merchandising is impossible. It is of particular importance to the ventures into the field of world trade. Realizing the vital necessity of authentic information along these lines for the American business man desirous of building business abroad, the United States bureau of education, co-operating with Glen Levin Swiggett, chairman of the committee of fifteen on educational preparation for foreign service, has issued the following list comprising twenty-nine titles. It is recommended by the bureau that the following course be pursued: Section A—That all persons whose previous school training did not extend beyond high school read in sequence numbers 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 20, 21, 24 and 25. Section B—That those with previous college training read in sequence numbers 4, 9, 11, 12, 15, 18, 19, 22, 23, 24, 25 and 29. Section C—And that those with previous college training who may be interested in some aspect of foreign service of the government read in sequence numbers 2, 4, 5, 6, 9, 10, 11, 12, 14, 18, 19, 22, 23, 24, 25 and 29. The Growing Ice Cream Industry

BY GEORGE E. DILLMAN,
Manager the Bishop & Babcock Company of Georgia.

This is the eve of a great week in Atlanta and the south. Great for Atlanta because it is the centralizing point for master minds of a great American industry. Delegates and representatives from all parts of the country will meet here in exhibition and convention and everyone directly or indirectly associated with the business of making or retailing ice cream should manifest the true progressive spirit of Atlanta and the south by contributing interest in this exhibition and convention. I feel free in saying that never before in the history of the world has business depended so much as it does now upon association and co-operation and that is substantially the purpose of the meeting here of the Southern Association of Ice Cream Manufacturers and the exhibition at the Auditorium which was conceived and promoted by The Dixie Flyers, an association of supply men affiliated with the Manufacturers' association.

Benefit to the South.
Obvious the intention of any association meeting in convention is to broaden and strengthen the constructive character of the business by an exchange of ideas and experiences and as a result of this meeting here the entire south cannot but benefit because of the additional strength of the ice cream industry will derive from the four days of association. In addition to this the big show at the Auditorium will be a revelation in mechanical equipment that has been developed for the manufacture of ice cream.

This show of machinery and supplies will clearly reflect the inventive ingenuity of the industry that has not only made it possible to keep production consistent with demand, but increase in quality standards and increase in production costs. The growth of the ice cream business during the past twenty years has been tremendous and the magnitude of the business today is due largely to the progressive policies back of the industry, the most important being the honest endeavor of ice cream manufacturers to utilize every improvement in either material or equipment to make the business bigger and better. Owing to the high quality maintained in the manufacture of commercial ice cream and the continual adoption of the most modern methods of manufacture the business has grown to the point of serving practically every man, woman and child in the country. Years ago ice cream was considered a luxury and in these early days most of it was of the "home-made" variety.

Influence of Machinery.
Since the advent of commercial manufacture the business itself has increased yearly and at the same time opened avenues of other business pursuits of a relative nature. There are now innumerable large dairy enterprises catering to the ice cream business and the scores of large manufacturers building machinery for dairies and ice cream manufacturing plants, and these machinery manufacturers are continually making improvements and in arranging an exposition, such as will be at the Auditorium Monday through Wednesday and Thursday, manufacturers of ice cream will have an opportunity to see the very latest machinery and supplies and in this manner obtain invaluable knowledge.

It is just as true of the ice cream business as any other manufacturing business that methods of manufacture are continually changing because of the invention of more improved machinery and methods and benefits thus obtained pass along the trail to the consumer.

THE GO-GETTER

To Craddock Goins, editor of "Sweets," goes the credit for bringing the big ice cream show to Atlanta. He went out singlehanded and got it—even though it did take a lot of traveling and hard work. "Craddy," as his friends know him, is a go-getter—and he looks the part.

MANUFACTURERS SEE BETTER TIMES

Delegates to the American Specialty Manufacturers association's annual convention which met during the past week at Atlantic City, men who represented practically every city in the country, gave it as their opinion that the new year would be one of good business and that only optimistic forecasts were really in order at this time.

In the opinion of President Manson, of the association, business men have gone through the most severe part of the period of reconstruction and that conditions this year are much better than last.

The convention went on record as believing that the disarmament conference now in session at Washington would through its deliberations produce results that would be beneficial to all mankind both in humanitarian and business channels.

LONDON TRAFFIC RUNS INTO IMMENSE FIGURES

London's traffic was always rather wonderful. Figures just given seem to take it well into the sphere of fable. For example, 4,000,000 passengers are carried daily by the Underground Railways companies; 516 cars an hour pass through Earl's court during the "rush" periods; 1,215 cars an hour is the record for the three underground lines converging at Charing Cross. The number of motor-omnibuses passing busy points at the busiest times is: Charing Cross, 640 omnibuses per hour; bank, 506 per hour; Oxford Circus, 542 per hour; Piccadilly-circus, 518 per hour.

Labor in Better Shape Now Than Before the War

Wage scales throughout the United States still are nearly 100 per cent greater than in 1913, when the cost of living began to be made the basis for strikes for higher pay. This holds true despite reductions of scales by many big concerns and lines of industry, according to government officials.

Continuance of war-time scales in a few lines of endeavor is holding the nation back, it is contended, in its efforts to make speed toward prosperity.

Workers generally are far better off than before. Retail food prices are only 50 per cent above pre-war levels. Taking into consideration necessities, the cost of living has been reduced nearly 20 per cent in the year, according to the labor department.

Average earnings throughout industry now range from $1,000 to $1,100 a year. This is for part time of most of those now employed. The average is increasing.

Study made by the labor department of the wage scales of cotton mill workers is illustrative of the general situation. Wages in this industry have been reduced, perhaps, more drastically than in any other.

Some instances reductions have run as high as 22 per cent. But, despite this, the average of wages per hour now is approximately 150 per cent in excess of that in 1913. It also is 40 per cent more than 1918, when mills were working at top speed.

Average earnings of the majority of cotton mill operatives now is $16.00 a week. In cotton finishing the average is nearly $22 a week.

Government officials believe unemployment will be reduced to a normal standard by spring. This would mean a surplus of about 1,000,000 workers, according to estimates of Secretary of Labor Davis.

Live Stock Value Doubled. The total value of live stock products of farms in the United States in 1919 not including live stock sold or slaughtered, according to the fourteenth census, was $2,007,738,331, compared with $1,177,974,703 in 1909.

There was therefore an increase in value of live stock products during the decade of $1,829,763,628, or 126.5 per cent. This large increase in the value of live stock products is due in part to the high prices in 1919.

The states which reported the largest, but the other crops of the state returned good investments. Business, I believe, will be better after we have passed the new year, and I expect it to show better results in the state quicker than in any other part of the country.

Building Our Foreign Trade

The department of commerce has recently undertaken to co-operate with the Federation of Corn Millers in calling attention to the merits of corn as a cheap and satisfactory food. Previous attempts to introduce corn flour into Europe have not been very successful, but it is believed that grits should be found satisfactory.

The use of corn as a food is general in two or three sections of Europe, notably Rumania and northern Italy. During the war European countries also permitted the mixture of certain percentages of corn flour with wheat flour, and this resulted in a rather extensive use of corn. The customary method of using corn as food in southern Europe is in the form of a porridge, and the well-known American corn bread is practically unknown.

Push Corn in Europe. Several attempts have been made in the past to introduce American corn meal and corn flour into Europe. At the time of the Paris exposition in 1900, the United States government gave demonstrations and much publicity to the use of corn as food. The attempt to introduce corn meal for the purpose of making bread has not, however, usually met with success.

European housewives use stale rather than hot breads. Cold corn bread is not a very palatable food, and for that reason has not been very acceptable to European people. Another difficulty has been the trouble of keeping corn meal. Modern degenerated meal, of course, keeps very well, but that of the corn meal sent to Europe in past years kept in condition but several years. It is said that full-grown toads always return to the pond where they were hatched to mate and to lay their eggs.

Charles Forbes Taylor, known in England as "the boy revivalist," has been preaching since he was nine years old.

est values for live stock products in 1919 were as follows: New York, $225,465,739; Wisconsin, $213,022,023; Pennsylvania, $150,012,081; Ohio, $155,587,919; Illinois, $142,351,202; and Iowa, $130,250,447.

Atlanta Can Be Thankful to Its Building Trades

Conditions in This City Much Better Than Elsewhere.

One of the things for which Atlanta can be thankful these days is that it has no such condition in its building situation as has been faced of late by other large cities.

Chicago is a case in point. Just about everything that could happen there to retard building operations has happened. Contractors and unions alike have been offenders. Finally a citizens' committee has been formed, and has taken hold of the situation. A recent statement by President Noel of the Chicago Association of Commerce says:

"Chicago faces the greatest real estate and building boom it has ever experienced. Judge Landis' decision was most important, not for its wage adjustment as for its attitude on union agreements and working conditions in building trades, which have restrained investors from putting their money into building projects and resulted in graft and crookedness. Many millions are available for investment here as soon as investors are assured they can get work done at reasonable cost. This will increase yearly wages of men in building and other trades."

About 75 per cent of the building trades unions here formally accepted Judge Landis' wage decision, and the remaining 25 per cent confront an open shop. Carpenters particularly are seeking sympathetic support from the crafts in good standing, but the citizens' committee is obdurate.

Its stand is described officially as follows: "We are going to see that in recalcitrant trades the work will go on regardless of the unions. We will undertake to get the men, defend their lawsuits and insure their jobs against riot. Contractors must also play fair and come through clean. The campaign has already been underwritten for some months, but we are going to ask the citizens to put up almost as much money as they have paid in one year for graft, and that is a lot." The amount of the fund sought is $3,000,000, and every home owner is asked to help enforcement of the Landis award.

Contrast conditions in Atlanta with the above and there is surely a great deal to be thankful for—to the credit of both Atlanta contractors and workmen.

NATIONS VARY IN PORTLAND CEMENT SPECIFICATIONS

The specifications that the various countries of the world use in buying Portland cement have been summarized in a chart that has just been issued by the bureau of standards of the department of commerce.

Cement is an international building material and 32 countries have specifications for Portland cement, 20 of which differ in important details.

Twenty-five others use the specifications of other countries in assuring the quality of the cement used in construction within the country, and many accept the cement if it passes the tests of the country in which it is made.

Although specifications differ in details and values, they include the same kind of tests in most cases. These are tests for chemical composition, specific gravity, fineness of grinding, setting time, soundness, and tensile and compressive strength.

There is one universal specification for Portland cement, which has been adopted by the commercial interests, testing engineers as well as the government.

Georgia's Plants Now Working On 55 P.C. Full Time

Lumber and Building Material Industries Are on a Boom.

Fifty-five per cent of Georgia's manufacturing plants are now operating full time and 35 per cent are operating on a part time basis, the remaining 10 per cent being idle. These figures were given out by John W. Yopp, secretary of the Georgia Manufacturers' association, in a statement during the past week to the New York Journal of Commerce.

Mr. Yopp declared at the outset that the manufacturers throughout the south are not expecting any better business conditions until after the first of the year, although he said that the business interests not alone of the state, but of the entire south, are quite a number of the specialty manufacturers. After the first of the year Mr. Yopp said that activity in all lines of the south should show a decided turn for the better.

Georgia's manufactured products are worth $408,818,429.95 annually—nearly a half billion dollars. Over 400,000 workmen are employed in normal times and even though only 55 per cent of the industries are working full time there are less than 25,000 men now out of work in the state. Although the past year has been a very turbulent one, the failures in the manufacturing business have been very few and small. Mr. Yopp said the percentage of firms that were forced into insolvency was comparatively insignificant.

Boom in Lumber. One line of industry—that of the manufacturers of finished lumber—is enjoying boom times, and the manufacturers are experiencing difficulty in keeping pace with the demand for building materials. On the other hand, the cottonseed oil business is suffering one of the worst years in its history.

The boom in the lumber manufacturers' business is accounted for by two things—the building increase throughout the south in the past two months and the tremendous drop in the prices of all kinds of building materials. Building activity throughout the entire south for the past two months has been better than in any two months in the past year.

The slump in the cotton oil business is explainable also. Cottonseed crushers throughout the state declare that the chief reason is unfair competition with Orient oil, which they say is manufactured and shipped here and then sold under them to such an extent that they cannot compete with it. A short cotton crop and the diverting of practically all of the peanuts to the confectionery trade are other reasons. Very few of the mills are now operating, although this is usually the busy season for them.

Tax and Tariff. Discussing the manufacturing business as a whole, Mr. Yopp declared that settlement by congress of the tax

FIVE-STAR CAST IN "BROADWAY WHIRL"

Comes Monday to Atlanta
Theater for Three-Day Engagement.

There is a great deal of interest in the coming engagement of the "Broadway Whirl," which is a novelty and unlike any theatrical entertainment which has ever come to this city. The "Whirl" was originally a roof show. This is essentially a New York form of entertainment. Roof shows attract the smart set and provide it with happy hours. It is an entertainment made up of specialties and spectacle and music and dancing and variety. It is designed to create excitement. The "Broadway Whirl" which tomorrow (Monday) night begins an engagement of three nights and matinee at the Atlanta theater under the direction of John Henry Mears was on the Century Roof in New York for three years. After a short tour of the principal cities it again returned to New York, where all last summer it entertained the tired business man at the Times Square. Mr. Mears has assembled a noteworthy cast. It is made up of stars of national-wide popularity. It is composed of Blanche King, Charles Winger, Winona Winter, Jay Gould, Maxson and Brown, Nina Penn, Gertrude McDonald, Inez Courtney, Virginia Birmingham, and with these stars is the famous "Millionaire's Chorus," the admired of New York, an aggregation of girls noted for their beauty and grace and talent. It is easy to imagine the gaiety and merriment and fun and music and dancing and color that will be provided by this company. Its members have excellent material to work with. They are at their best in the "Whirl." This entertainment was designed for glee and happiness and high spirits. Every moment is merry. It is a combination of revue, cabaret, vaudeville and spectacle. It is difficult to imagine how any one can wish for more in a single performance.

Leo Carrillo Here Thursday.
Leo Carrillo, coming to the Atlanta theater in Oliver Morosco's much admired production of Frederick and Fanny Hatton's gay fashion comedy "Lombardi," next Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights and Saturday matinee, is making his first starring tour through the south this season, after a successful run of more than a year at the Morosco theater in New York and a second year of extended engagements in Boston, Philadelphia and Chicago. In this offering local theatergoers are assured the original star and all the much admired details of one of the most known of the recent Morosco successes.

In the story of "Lombardi Ltd.," a designer of fashionable women's gowns, who is also an alarmist, devotee of his time and money to interests outside of his business that he almost loses the business, but he clings to his strict moral code of living and belief in the Christian rule, helping others with a determination that is marked by many unusual situations which are made seemingly funny at times because of the mannerisms and method of expressing himself in the temperamental Latin style of an Americanized Italian of the better class.

"THE TRAFFIC COP" LYRIC HEADLINER

Laughable Skit Is Presented by Roger Gray and Company.

Atlanta may hang lanterns at Five Points and do all manner of excellent things for its traffic situation, but it will never put half the punch into it that Roger Gray and company put into the Lyric theater the first part of the coming week. "The Traffic Cop" is their act and it is reputed to be just about the most laughable skit ever to hold a stage.

And this is just one segment of the excellent bill which Manager Semon has gathered for the next week. On Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, for instance, in addition to the traffic cop, patrons of the theater will see Hall Ermine and Bryce in "A Night on Broadway," something as interesting as the actual visit to Broadway would be to the man who had never stepped away from Pumpkin Center, Nebraska.

Also, there is the delicious tomfoolery of Carle and Inez, with their "Doorsstep Romeo" whirl of conversation and antics. Then there are thrills in store in the offering of the LeMaure Trio, who balance and tumble in a most engrossing way. Atlanta already admits that this act is out of the ordinary by a long shot, for the trio has visited us before and has made us glad.

And the slang addict who thinks he is low-rating another's intelligence when he refers to "this bird" and "that bird" will have to remodel his vocabulary when he has seen the entertainment that Lucille and Cockie have to offer. Cockie is a bird, with feathers, beak and all birdish accoutrements. But he goes most birds one better in that he can think and do all manner of things that prove that he can think. This feathered wonder has been here before and will be welcomed.

The latter half of the week will be featured by a tabloid musical comedy, which takes five persons for its very fine performance. It bears the title of "Strip Live!" and does. McCloud and Norman, with much jazz music; Eileen Sheridan, the singing comedienne; Walsh and Edwards, a pair of very clever youngsters; and the Volante, a male quartet, round out the last half of the week's bill.

style of an Americanized Italian of the better class.
He has fallen in love with a show girl, discovers that she is just like all other chorus girls are popularly supposed to be, and then is confronted with the fact that his debts have become greater than his assets of the moment. In this threatening situation he is saved by a business friend and finally again falls in love, this time with a girl who is as true and sympathetic young Irish girl assistant. Comedy was written by the Hattons under special Morosco commission for Mr. Carrillo. The Hattons have several other successful comedies to their credit, but in "Lombardi Ltd." they are said to have excelled all their previous efforts. It comes here acclaimed superior to their "Up Stairs and Down," which would provide an ample guarantee of its cleverness in the modern style of dramatic composition for the stage. All the local theatrical guides who have seen the performance in other places admit that theatergoers be asked to make sure of seeing this happy entertainment which gives such promise of a delightful visit to the theater. One has said of it that it provides "a real eye and ear tickler par excellence, leaving no heavy-minded regrets to carry away from the theater at the close."

LOEW'S GRAND OFFERS ALL-STAR VAUDEVILLE

Five Splendid Acts and Buck Jones as Star
on Screen.

Another splendid program is offered the coming week at Loew's Grand theater. Vaudeville of the highest order and the best of photoplay features. For Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday an all-star vaudeville bill is promised.

Five big Loew acts, with comedy, music and dancing in its varied forms and a novel act or two thrown in for good measure. And then as an added reason for attending there is Buck Jones, the famous cowboy film star, in one of his red-blooded western thrillers, "Bar Nothing," at the top of a long screen program.

Prominent among the vaudeville acts is the offering of Francis, Ross and Dulkoss in a scintillating series of steps, smiles and songs. Dance novelties well executed are always necessary on a successful vaudeville program and this clever company have about reached perfection in that line of entertainment. The act has been a winner in the large cities and will be well received here.

Race and Edge in "London Bridge," a hilarious character laugh hit, are English comedians. They have a very funny skit and introduce a most amusing English character. Songs comedy combine in making this turn a clever one.

Joseph Byron Totten, the eminent actor and author, is returning to Atlanta with this show with a splendid one-act playlet, "Just a Thief." As may be imagined by the title it is a crook play and as presented by his little company of four bids fair to gain top honors on this bill.

Elsie Murphy and Eddie Klein have in their new number "Tinkling Tunes and Timely Topics," besides singing of the better sort and comedy chatter they entertain with the saxophone and piano.

Not to be overlooked is the appearance of Hashi and Osa in a series of spectacular Oriental frolics. These Orientals are exponents of novelty gymnastics, balancing, tumbling and water swimming and in this form of vaudeville entertainment.

"Bar Nothing," in which Buck Jones is the star and the feature of the bill, is made to please those who like lightning speed in a picture. It is full of exciting scenes from start to finish and at the same time tells a story of intense interest.

Three Screen Stars In "Peck's Bad Boy" At the Savoy Monday

Three well known motion picture stars are appearing in "Peck's Bad Boy," the feature picture at the Savoy theater on Monday, Jackie Coogan, Doris May and Wheeler O'Keefe. This is Jackie Coogan's greatest picture, one in which he scored such a success all over the country. It is a story full of laughter and carries a romantic theme that is most appealing. "Paying Patience," a Dorothy Devore comedy, is also on the program for Monday.

On Tuesday Helen Chadwick is to be star, playing the leading role in "Made in Heaven," a comedy drama in which she shares honors equally with Tom Moore. Tuesday will furnish the comedy for the bill for that day in his hilarious comedy, "Chick- Chick."

Wednesday brings May McAvoy in "Everything for Sale." The story of a girl who is offered for sale in the marriage market. Charlie Chaplin's comedy, "Work," is also on this program.

For the balance of the week, Mary Miles Minter comes Thursday in "Her Winning Way," Alice Brady Friday in "Dawn of the East," and Douglas Fairbanks Saturday in "When the Clouds Roll By."

JANE COWL COMING TO ATLANTA THEATER

In "Smiling Through" Star
Has Beautiful and Inspiring Story.

Jane Cowl and "Smiling Through" is the irresistible combination that is making a sensational tour of the country this season and this city is to be favored by a visit.

This wonderful play has tremendously strengthened the grip of Miss Cowl on the affections of her large and adoring public, for never in the history of her brilliant career has she painted so appealing a picture as the two distinct characters she achieves in the dual romance of this beautiful and inspiring story. In the unfolding of his plot, Allan Langdon Martin tells two stories of an almost equal power and charm. The one is of Kathleen Duncannon, an Irish lass of today, the fulfillment of whose happiness is barred by the bitter hatred and resentment of the uncle with whom she lives towards her lover for a tragedy that lover's father once brought into the uncle's life. The second romance is of an exquisite nature being that of Kathleen's uncle in his youth, and the girl who met a tragic fate on her bridal night. This lovely lady of the misty yesteryear is also impersonated by Miss Cowl who paints the picture with so deft a touch that it is no matter of surprise that her love for her John is a thing of eternity unaltered by either death or time. Not in many seasons has so accomplished a supporting company been outside of a New York theater. Miss Cowl's picture, that her great following this side of the Hudson river should enjoy "Smiling Through" precisely as given to their metropolitan brethren.

Cornell university conducted an experiment a couple of years ago that yielded unexpected results. The investigators desired to find just from what source milk was chiefly contaminated. They kept cows in stables that were filthy; they allowed the flanks of the cows to become caked with filth, and finally they stopped cleaning the milk vessels properly. It was the last omission that had the most serious effect on the quality of the milk. This is of what the most of us would expect. Milk vessels should be washed in hot water. On no account should the hot water be used first. Its action on the albumen of the milk is to turn it into a compound closely resembling glue. This solidifies the vessels and is not apt to be scrubbed off. Finally, all metal utensils must be sealed with boiling water before they can be considered sanitary. Brushes should always be used; cloths never. It is on the last point that most farmers fall down. It is quite the common practice to take a kettle of boiling water to the barn when going to milk. By the time that milking is completed, the water is no longer boiling and injurious bacteria are not killed.

Barbers claim that their trade is one of the best barometers of general business conditions. When times are bad, men let their hair go much longer without attention.

"From the Ground Up," Tom Moore Photoplay, Featured at Rialto

Tom Moore is given excellent support in "From the Ground Up," a Goldwyn picture, coming to the Rialto theater, for one week, commencing tomorrow.

The cast includes DeWitt C. Jennings, known as one of the finest actors of his type on the screen; Hardee Kirkland, a powerful actor of heavier roles; Darrell Foss, as a polished "villain," and Helene Chadwick as the star's leading lady.

Terence Gilkey is a witty, good-natured lad who digs ditches for a living. Philena Mortimer, daughter of the builder sends for him to find out why he is so contented and merry. (Her father has just refused to buy her a $25,000 motor boat because he is sinking all his money into the building.) She asks if he will sell his harmonica of joy. He gives it to her and she presses a dollar bill into his hand, insulting him and laying the foundation of his fortune.

Mortimer goes bankrupt and his building passes into the hands of Carwell. Terence becomes first a concrete mixer, then gang boss and finally assistant to the superintendent of the building. One day he saves the life of Carwell's drunken n'e-do-well son who has been a suitor for Philena's hand. Carwell invests part of Terence's pay envelope and makes a thousand dollars for him.

It is not long until Terence seeks to advance socially as he has financially. He learns his ride and is again brought into contact with Philena. Later still he meets her at night school.

When the skyscraper is finished Terence has blossomed into a builder and confidant and has his office on the top floor. He advertises for a stenographer and Philena applies—and gets a position for life as Mrs. Terence Gilkey, after some amusing misadventures.

"OVER THE HILL" TO BE SHOWN HERE; COMES TO HOWARD

The theme which evoked from King Lear his immortal plaint, "How sharper than a serpent's tooth it is to have the thankless child!" and which caused Absalom to break the heart of his aged father, David, king of Israel, has been used by William Fox for his greatest photoplay, "Over the Hill," which will be seen at the Howard theater the week of December 5.

There has been so much said in the magazines and newspapers all over the country about the sensational run of "Over the Hill" in New York for the past year, that it seems almost superfluous to dwell at length on its merits. Suffice to say that the superb film drama was made by William Fox from two of Will Carleton's celebrated "Farm Ballads" and has for its theme the divine love of a mother. Harry Millard directed the picture and Paul H. Sloane made the scenario.

While the story is one that is calculated to reach, by its strength of sentiment, the heart of the most jaded and calloused playgoer, it has nevertheless many lighter moments when the risibilities are tickled by some of the most delightful comedy ever flashed upon the screen.

STRAND THEATER TO SHOW "THE OLD NEST"

Great Picture Comes Back to Atlanta for Entire Week.

When "The Old Nest" comes to the Strand theater on Monday for a special request return showing for the entire week, the people of Atlanta will again have a chance to see a picture that has been hailed by critics and reviewers as one of the most satisfying all-American pictures that has yet been produced. The theme, that of a mother who sees her six children leave her, one by one, is common to American families. All the poignancy of feeling that these leave-takings arouse in real life have been caught on the screen.

Rupert Hughes is the author of this unusual tale of mother love. He has sought to present a cross-section of a universal theme as applied to an American family. All the joys and sorrows connected with raising a family have been dramatized. Each of the children grow to manhood or womanhood with his own individual interests, then leaves the old nest to follow the call of his desires. Only their mother is left to her loneliness and her memories. But, as in every American family, the young reunite the old nest and return to it.

Mary Alden plays the old mother and her performance has been said to be a masterpiece of screen acting. Tony Sarge's almanac with the title of "Why They Love Cave Men," will augment the feature.

The most appalling accident in history was the falling of an amphitheater in Rome in the time of Tiberius. Fifty thousand people were crushed.

Betty Compson, in "End of the World," Comes to Vaudette

One of the most unusual roles ever seen in a motion picture is that portrayed by Betty Compson in her new Paramount production, "At the End of the World," which incidentally is her first starring vehicle and will be shown at the Vaudette on Monday and Tuesday.

Miss Compson is seen as "Cherry," the beautiful daughter of a broken-down Englishman, who runs a cafe and gambling place in Shanghai, China. She grows up in the atmosphere of the gay resort serving as a lure for her father's establishment yet taking perfect care of herself and possessing fine qualities that are still dormant. Then comes romance and into this romance comes the emotions of lives of other men who are made desperate by her charms. The role is a severe test of the emotional powers of any actress and Miss Compson is said to have executed it with the same skill and in the same convincing manner in which she portrayed her enchanting part in "The Miracle Man."

Patricia Stanlaw directed the new picture. The supporting cast is excellent, including Milton Sills, Joseph Kilgour and other famous players. In addition to the feature a Sunshine comedy will be shown, "One Moment, Please." This program will be shown for two days at the Vaudette—Monday and Tuesday.

Baked Rabbit.

Cut rabbit in joints and soak as directed. Dip dry, dip in beaten egg, roll in crumbs and season to taste. In a well-buttered pan, broil the rabbit and pour olive oil or melted butter over it. Bake in a steady oven until tender, then remove to a hot dish. Pour over the rabbit a good cream sauce or gravy. Garnish with crisp strips of bacon.

"A MAN'S HOME" AT THE METROPOLITAN

Notable Cast in Drama—Harry Morey Plays Leading Role.

A notable cast, vital drama, tense situations and a powerful lesson are all included in "A Man's Home," a Selznick special, directed by Ralph Ince, which comes to the Metropolitan theater all week.

The picture vividly depicts the dramatic upheaval in the home of Frederick Osborn, who has become wealthy only after untiring struggle, and is a keen study of the American self-made man and the effect of his domineering attitude upon his family. Osborn's pretty wife, since the accumulation of wealth, concerns herself only with frivolous thoughts and companions. On a trip east she meets Cordelia and Jack Wilson who, unknown to her, are nothing but a pair of adventurers. They cunningly connive to blackmail her.

Mrs. Osborn invites the Wilsons for a visit to her home, but Osborn is suspicious of them, because of reports he has heard to the effect that his wife has been spending her time in bad company.

Jack Wilson has been flattering Mrs. Osborn during their acquaintance and believes her to be a shallow, faithless wife. He makes advances based upon this supposition but is repulsed by Mrs. Osborn, who coming to her senses, realizes that she has been deceived and angrily upbraids him. In the midst of the scene Osborn arrives and overhears the conversation. He takes a hand in the affair and a stormy session results. Wilson, nothing daunted, attempts to carry out his plans and one engrossing situation follows another until a thrilling and dramatic climax is reached.

The cast selected to interpret the various roles is one of the most notable ever seen on the screen. The list is headed by Harry T. Morey, who portrays the husband, and Kathryn Williams, a screen favorite of many years, who plays the irresponsible wife. Grace Valentine and Roland Bottomley are cast as the two adventurers and Matt Moore and Faire Binney as the youthful lovers. The production was directed by Ralph Ince whose past successes have stamped him one of the greatest directors of the silent drama.

ERLANGER PRAISED AS GREAT PRODUCER

"Did you hear," inquired Lucien Clives in The Sunday Herald, "what Mr. Erlanger thinks of giving away theater tickets?"

Then Mr. Clives proceeds:

"The business Gibraltar of the theater world is, of course, A. L. Erlanger, which is one of the first principles of his career that every theater manager learns if he is trying to stay in the show business. Mr. Erlanger is one of the men who were most influential in putting amusements on the same basis that exists in other great industries. He did more than anybody else to eliminate the fly by night, speculative and uncertain elements that had long been thought inseparable from the methods of the theater manager.

"It is to him, therefore, that one refers always any question of ways and means that may arise in the profession. Certain matters recently troubled the reporter of The New York Herald. He did not understand, for instance, why theater managers who were supposed to sell them should be advertising so proudly that they were giving away theater tickets. Whether it was for purposes of education or mere diversion, or for old shoes or for any kind of old clothes, or for any object whatever, it seemed contrary to all business principles to be giving away what they are in the business to sell.

"Mr. Erlanger was, therefore, appealed to for an opinion on the subject. He did not want to talk about it. He would not talk about it. But he was willing after a while to recite a little parable which he framed in these words:

"After every war a lot of crazy notions seem to spring up in the minds of men. The show business always does get back to normal, and it will again."

"Do you get that? Although Mr. Erlanger absolutely refused to be interviewed on the subject of giving away theater tickets, it seems possible, indeed, without too much pondering, quite possible, to grasp what he thinks on the subject."

Said To Be More Delightful Than in Book Form.

The fascinating old sinner who has had a place in the hearts of five generations of us, ever since Washington Irving gave him to us a hundred years ago.

In book form, on the speaking stage, he has brought joy to countless thousands. And now on the screen a great artist under the guidance of a master director has painted a picture which the passing of years can never dim.

"Rip Van Winkle," as a motion picture, is infinitely more delightful than ever it was in book or play form. It is a genuine epic of the silver sheet that will endure forever.

To children it will come as the most joyous event of an age, for Rip was beloved of every child who ever listened to his stories and dreamed under his kindly smile. Now is there a grown-up who can resist his sheer wholesomeness and humanness.

You know, and so does practically every man, woman and child in the world know, the story of Rip Van Winkle—Hendrick Hudson and his ghostly crew, the little gnomes with their ten pins and magic liquor, the dreamland queen with their heriboned retinue. They are all in "Rip Van Winkle," with Thomas Jefferson playing the role of Rip created and made famous by his illustrious father, Joseph Jefferson.

It is with a degree of pride that the Criterion theater announces this notable attraction for the week commencing November 28. Knowing you to be a great admirer of better things in motion pictures, we take this liberty of advising you the date of the engagement.

THE HOWARD THEATER OFFERS "THE SHEIK"

Screen Version of Edith
Hull's Sensational Novel
Here All Week.

Continuing tomorrow, for an entire week, the Howard theater will present as its feature attraction, a Paramount version of the sensational novel by Edith M. Hull, "The Sheik," a George Melford production. Agnes Ayres and Rudolph Valentino are the featured players.

The story has a most unusual plot, and the Arabian atmosphere adds greatly to the romantic glamour of the production. Enrico Leide has prepared a musical score for this production that will include many of the popular Oriental selections. At the de luxe performances the feature picture will be preceded by a dramatic prologue entitled "A Bit of Harem Life," created by Enrico Leide and interpreted by Miss Marion Dabney, of the Spiker players.

Other numbers on the program will be a Tchaikovsky's "Marche Slave," an overture by the Howard orchestra; the Howard News and Views, and "The Eternal Miracle," a scenic. There will be no change in the hours of performances during the engagement of "The Sheik" at the Howard theater. The customary schedule of 12:30, 2:15, 4:00, 5:45, 7:30 and 9:15 will prevail, with complete de luxe presentation at 4:00, 7:30 and 9:15.

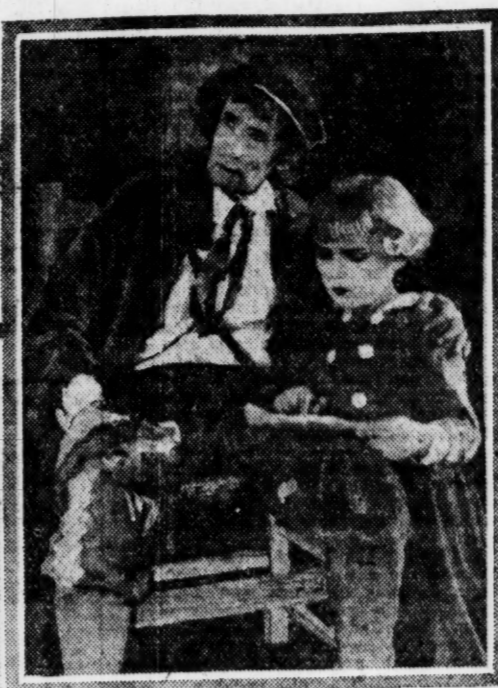

BIG WESTERN PICTURE ON SCREEN AT TUDOR

Harry Carey in "The Fox"
Has First Super Production.

What is promised as one of the greatest western photodramas ever made has been produced by Universal with Harry Carey in the starring role. Believing in the wide-spread appeal of the west of today, with its thrilling romance and picturesque realism, Universal decided to make a "super western" picture. It is "The Fox," which comes to the Tudor theater this week, and which is the first super production to be made by the long popular "western" star, Harry Carey.

In recognition of his long list of successful photodramas and of the place which Carey holds in the affection of the American public, Carl Laemmle, president of Universal, recently cited the Ace of the Saddle and awarded him a place among the Universal-Jewel stars, who make Universal's most elaborate pictures. That means that he is to appear in photodramas for which there is no time or economic limit in production and that he is to rank with the foremost stars of the world in the elaborateness of his starring vehicles. "The Fox" is said to have cost nearly a quarter of a million dollars in production.

His first photodrama to go to the screen as a Universal-Jewel is naturally of particular interest to the public. It has already been pronounced a masterpiece by critics within the motion picture industry and now the verdict of the playgoers is awaited to confirm the judgment of the profession.

The story was written by Carey himself and adapted to the screen by Lucien Hubbard, scenario editor at Universal City. It was directed by Robert Thornby. Naturally it is a splendid picture, but it has even greater claim to distinction. It will give playgoers a colorful view of the heroic old Eleventh United States cavalry actually in action. It will reveal enchanting vistas of the awe-inspiring Mojave desert heretofore uncaptured by the camera and it will afford another opportunity for her admirers to see Betty Ross Clark in a role to which she is particularly adapted.

Baked Cod, Spanish Style.

Two pounds cod, cut in half-inch steaks, 1 green pepper, chopped, 1 onion (small), chopped, 1-2 cups tomatoes.

Put fish in greased baking dish, sprinkled with salt and pepper, and spread with chopped onion and pepper. Pour tomatoes around the fish, and bake in a hot oven about thirty minutes or until the fish is tender. Lift fish carefully to hot serving dish, thicken sauce in the pan with a little flour—about one tablespoon mixed with cold water. Pour sauce around fish before serving.

Cooking Rabbits.

Much of the excellence of the rabbit depends upon the manner of cooking it. Rabbit meat should be soaked in salted water; this improves the flesh and draws the blood. A little soda added to the water helps to remove the wild flavor.

It must be remembered that the meat is practically free from fat, therefore fat in some form must be used with it. For frying and roasting, bacon is best; for boiling, salt pork is often used, while butter and oil are excellent in many ways of cooking a rabbit.

To cut up a rabbit for cooking, the hind legs are first removed at the joint, in a manner similar to that used for removing the legs from chicken, cutting through the flesh, then back to the joint. Next, the forelegs are removed at the joint, but, of course, the pieces are smaller. All that is left is the rack, which is divided at a point near the middle of the back. A medium-sized rabbit will serve four persons.

At The Howard All This Week

See the auction of beautiful girls to the lords of Algerian harems.

See the heroine, disguised, invade the Bedouins' secret slave rites.

See Sheik Ahmed raid her caravan and carry her off to his tent.

See her stampede his Arabian horses and dash away to freedom.

See her captured by bandit tribesmen and enslaved by their chief in his stronghold.

See the sheik's vengeance, the storm in the desert, a proud woman's heart surrendered.

See matchless scenes of gorgeous color, and wild free life, and love. In the year's supreme screen thrill—

"A Bit of Harem Life"
By Marion Dabney

Tomato Aspic Salad.

Two and one-half tablespoons cold water, 2 cups hot stewed tomatoes, 1-2 cup vinegar, 3 tablespoons sugar, 1 teaspoon salt, 1-2 cup chopped nuts or olives if desired. Soak the gelatin in the cold water.

add the tomatoes and the soft, vinegar and sugar and stir until all are dissolved. When cooled carefully fill into individual molds. Stand on ice until the gelatin stiffens. Dip the molds quickly into hot water and turn out the contents on crisp lettuce leaves. Serve with mayonnaise.

Shredded Grapefruit.

Quarter the grapefruit, then quill off rind. Remove seeds and all white skin. Shred pulp into small pieces, add 1-2 cup sugar. Place in pint jar on ice over night. Prepared in this way one grapefruit serves four people.
